

Senate Backs Reservoir Plan For Wolf River

Votes Charter to Company to Build
Series of Dams

KRESKY LOSES

Upper House Sends Measure to Assembly After Brief Debate

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The senate today after a brief flurry of debate passed and sent to the lower house a bill granting a charter to the Wolf River Reservoir company to build a series of dams on the Wolf River in order to control the water flow in all seasons and increase the water power potentialities of it and the heavily industrialized lower Fox river.

Before approving the bill, sponsored by Senator Mack of Shoucton, the senators perfunctorily rejected a public ownership substitute by Kresky, Green Bay Progressive, which would have had the same purposes, but would have directed the exploitation of the Wolf river's power resources through a quasi-public utility corporation along the lines of the federal TVA. Kresky's offering was rejected by a vote of 19 to 9. The original charter bill was approved by the same vote. Significantly, it was a 19 to 9 vote which killed the LaFollette WDA (Wisconsin Development authority) earlier this session.

Support Kresky
Seven Progressives and a Democrat voting of Milwaukee supported Kresky.

The Green Bay representative, who tried to talk the WDA repealer to death last February by an all-night filibuster, said that Harry Brooks, secretary of the Wolf River company, had a deed in his pocket by which he will sell 5,000 acres of cut over land in Langlade county to the corporation for $75,000 as soon as the charter is granted.

Charging Brooks with a "pecuniary interest" in lobbying for the bill, he asked the senate not to "let the exploiter, the promoter, come in here to sell the state another gold brick."

He said the company's reservoir plan would put a lien on the flowage rights of the whole Fox-Wolf river system, and argued that it was unfair for the Menominee Indians who want to develop their own reservation power sites without paying tribute to another private enterprise.

Peters recalled that Kresky's substitute parallels the former WDA closely, and charged that he sought to undo legislative action abolishing the WDA.

He also said that Fox river valley unions have petitioned for the charter bill because the development plan would steady employment in valley area mills.

Collier Collier (R), Neenah, said he didn't see anything wrong in a corporation buying land from a man and paying him for it.

Action Postponed
On Bill to Boost
State Age Pensions

Madison—(P)—Action on the bill to increase old age pensions again was delayed in the senate today for another week at least.

The measure, sponsored by the Wisconsin Recovery League, Inc., was brought up for debate but was put over until next Thursday after a clash between Senator Bernard Gettelman (R), Milwaukee, co-author, and Senator Harry Bolens (D), Port Washington.

Gettelman attacked Bolens for a speech the latter made before an old age pension group here several days ago in which he said promises for pension increases were largely "political bunk."

He declared Bolens ran for governor in the last campaign on a platform which pledged $60 a month pensions to persons over 60 and that "bunk comes from that kind of people."

Bolens replied he had made clear his position and had explained how the plank was inserted in the platform.

$1 Fishing License Measure Is Given Approval in House

Assembly Sends Bill to
State Senate by Vote
Of 48 to 42

Madison—(P)—The assembly passed 48 to 42 and sent to the senate today a bill requiring all resident fishermen over 18 years, except women and persons unable to pay, to obtain a license at a fee of $1 a year.

The bill, introduced by Julius Spearbraker (R) Clintonville, would require cane pole users to contribute an estimated $125,000 to $150,000 a year to funds used by the conservation department for improvement of fishing and hunting. Real and reel fishermen have paid the fee several years. A higher fee is required of non-residents.

The bill authorizes county officials to accept affidavits of indigency in lieu of the fee.

The council deferred until Oct. 1, 1941, a semi-annual tax payment program approved by the 1933 session but postponed by the 1935 and 1937 legislatures.

It passed a bill requiring the Milwaukee school board to publish three times a year resolutions regarding the expenditure of $100,000 or more, and permitting a referendum on the expenditure if sufficient voters request it.

The house sent to the governor a senate bill regulating slash disposal.

It adopted a resolution appropriating $300 from the assembly contingent fund to pay the expense of a vote recount in the dispute over the seating of Assemblyman Arthur J. Balzer (D) West Allis.

The assembly today killed a senate bill granting truck owners an extension to Aug 1 for renewal of their licenses. The deadline expired July 1 and penalties will begin to apply July 15.

Guardsmen Held
For Manslaughter

Driver of Army Truck to Face Trial in Fatal Accident

Madison—(P)—A manslaughter warrant was issued in superior court today against Corporal Philip Hartley, 26, of Milwaukee, driver of an army truck which overturned near Oregon last Saturday killing a fellow national guardsman, Private Walter H. Trush, 29, of Beloit.

Acting District Attorney Walter M. Bjork signed the complaint after a coroner's jury found Hartley guilty of "gross negligence."

The defendant pleaded innocent when arraigned before Superior Judge Roy H. Proctor and entered the same plea to a prior charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

Judge Proctor set preliminary hearing on both charges for July 20 and fixed total bail of $12,000.

The coroner's jury heard conflicting versions of events that preceded the crash.

Miss Marguerite Porterfield, 22, of Roscoe, Ill., who was riding in the truck with six guardsmen in violation of army regulations, testified the party had been drinking from the time it left Beloit in the lead of a convoy of officers and men enroute to Camp Douglas.

Hartley testified he had only a few drinks but said some one gave him whisky to revive him after the crash. He said he was driving only about 40 miles an hour.

Similar testimony was offered by Sergeants Theodore Florey, Andy Carr and Lloyd Scallard and Private Charles Porter, all of Beloit.

Employees at State
Hospitals May Have
Pay Checks Held Up

Madison—(P)—About 1,000 employees of four state hospitals for mental patients were caught today in the middle of a legislative jam over reorganization of the state's welfare activities and faced a prospect of having their pay checks held up this month.

The department of mental hygiene created in the board of control reorganization under former Governor LaFollette in 1937 was left out of the Heil administration budget on the assumption it would be abolished and it has no funds to meet an estimated pay roll of $60,000 for July.

The institutions involved are the Mendota and Winnebago State hospitals and the Northern and Southern colonies for the Feeble-Minded at Union Grove and Chippewa Falls. They are under the supervision of the mental hygiene department.

Assembly Speaker Vernon Thomson (R) Richland Center, author of an administration bill to abolish the present board of control setup and create a consolidated welfare department, blocked action in the house on an emergency bill to transfer funds to the hygiene department temporarily.

WPA HEADS DISCUSS REGULATIONS

While striking WPA employees marched outside in picket lines, WPA Commissioner Colonel F. C. Harrington and his state directors met in Chicago to discuss new regulations. Shown with Harrington before the meeting opened is J. H. Crutcher (right), Louisiana state director.

Quashes Indictment Against 43 Individuals and 14 Milk Industry Groups in Chicago

Chicago—(P)—An indictment accusing 43 individuals and 14 corporations and groups in the milk industry of violating the anti-monopoly law was dismissed today in federal court.

Leo F. Tierney, special assistant to the attorney general, announced the government would appeal the ruling directly to the United States Supreme Court.

The dismissal was embodied in Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward's sustaining of defense demurrers to the indictments.

Ninety-seven defendants, individuals, corporations and associations in the milk and ice cream industries were indicted Nov. 1, 1938, after a 16-week inquiry by a federal grand jury. A year's investigation by the department of justice preceded the grand jury action.

The ice cream indictment named 20 individuals and 20 corporations. Those named in the milk bill included Dr. Herman M. Bundesen, president of the Chicago Board of Health, and two aids; Captain Daniel Gilbert, area investigator of the Chicago state's attorneys office; 10 milk distributors and 21 officials of the concern; Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., bargaining agency of the major Chicago distributors, and 10 officers; the Pure Milk association, sales and bargaining agency for more than 12,000 members dairy farmers in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan; the Milk Wagon Drivers union and seven officers.

Judge Woodward held that the secretary of agriculture was empowered adequately to prevent or

Senate Rejects Pension Proposal

Turns Down Plan to Give
Needy Aged $30
Per Month

Washington—(P)—The senate rejected today on a voice vote a proposal to give the needy aged a federal pension of $30 a month.

The federal outlays would have been in addition to any state payments.

The proposal, offered by Senator Bilbo (D-Miss.) during consideration of amendments to the social security act, was opposed by Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee.

Bilbo argued that "the old people might hold the balance of power in the next election, and if we don't serve them they will find some one who will."

He told Republican senators they would "be on the spot" in 1940 if they failed to vote for the proposal.

Senator George (D-Ga.) said the social security board had estimated the Bilbo plan would cost at least $450,000,000 annually.

Three Measures are Sent to Governor

Madison—(P)—Three bills by Senator Conrad Shearer (R) Kenosha, to strengthen administrative laws for the care of crippled and handicapped children became law effective today with Governor Heil's signature.

One appropriates $2,500 annually to assist counties in transporting crippled children to the Orthopedic hospital in Madison for treatment.

The others set up a bureau within the department of public instruction having a director in charge and a supervisor for three divisions; one for crippled children; one for the mentally deficient; and one for blind and deaf children and those with defective speech.

The bureau will supervise certification of youngsters for treatment in the Orthopedic hospital and the cost of public patients will be borne equally by the state and counties.

221 Persons Facing Trial In Mine Area

President and Secretary Of CIO Union Included in Group

HARLAN IS QUIET

500 Additional Kentucky
National Guardsmen Arrive

Washington—(P)—John L. Lewis appealed to Attorney General Murphy today for federal intervention in the Harlan county (Kentucky) mine dispute where union miners and the Kentucky national guard clashed yesterday in a bloody gun battle.

Harlan, Ky.—(P)—Warrants were issued today against 221 persons—including the president and secretary of the United Mine Workers (CIO) in the Harlan coal field—as the aftermath of a "pitched battle" between pickets and national guardsmen in which a miner was killed and six other men, including two troopers, either shot or beaten.

The union leaders accused were William Turnblazer of Jellico, Tenn., District 19 U. M. W. A. president, and George Tittler of Harlan, district secretary-treasurer.

Turnblazer was not in Harlan. He announced Tuesday he had been called to Washington to testify before a senate committee.

All warrants except the one for him were served.

Mrs. Tittler was released on $1,000 bond provided by union attorneys. The bond for the others arrested was set at $1,000 each as they were arranged in groups of 50. The trials were set for Monday, and Tittler and the others were returned to jail.

Tittler was charged with sedition, forcible rebellion and armed attack on a national guardsman, and banding and confederating to intimidate the latter charge the same as that faced by the others in custody and by Turnblazer.

500 More Troopers
Harlan quieted down, meanwhile, with the arrival of 500 national guard reinforcements to augment 300 troops on duty in the county for nearly two months.

Troopers' bullets yesterday wounded a miner and his mother in a street disturbance following the picket-guardsmen clash at a nearby mine.

Captain John Hanberry of Hopkinsville, guard officer, and two miners wounded during the encounter were reported in a serious condition. The dead man was Dock Caldwell, 31, of Wilson-Barger.

Major Staples termed the situation here "extremely critical" as upward of 500 troop reinforcements, including machine-gun and tank units, moved in to augment the 300 guardsmen who have been on duty here for nearly two months.

Paul K. Reed, international representative of the U. M. W. A., said "runners" were sent out last night to give orders for "no picketing" today. Reed assumed charge temporarily of union activities in the absence of District President William Turnblazer of Jellico, Tenn., who was reported in Washington, and the unavailability of Tittler.

New Loan Necessary,
Parliament Is Told

London—(P)—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told parliament tonight that a new public loan of about $350,000,000 (about $1,538,000,000) probably would be necessary to meet Britain's mounting armament costs this year.

Sir John estimated that armament for the current year would cost $750,000,000 (about $3,415,400,000) as a result of new increases in the 1939-40 budget for the air force, supply ministry and the army.

Spoke a final debate on the budget, which was passed on third reading and sent to the house of lords.

A labor motion for rejection of the finance bill was defeated by a vote of 206 to 141.

Rain Helps Conquer
Fire in Black Hills

Rapid City, S. D.—(P)—Rain heeded today firefighters today to believe they at last had control of a forest fire 60 miles in circumference that raged through 20,000 acres of Black Hills vacation land since Monday.

Squalus Lifted From Ocean
Floor to Complete Difficult
Step in Salvage Operations

Portsmouth, N. H.—(P)—The sunken submarine Squalus, which had been lifted free from the ocean floor after an all-day effort, apparently broke loose from a navy salvage crew late today in a wild flurry that shot the entire bow of the craft momentarily above the surface.

Portsmouth, N. H.—(P)—On the verge of a complete victory, the navy suffered at least a temporary delay today in raising the U. S. S. Squalus and her 26 dead to the full 85-foot level set as the goal of its first "lift."

With virtually the entire length of the submarine lifted clear of the muddy bottom by its cradle of seven pontoons, the tremendous weight of the water-filled stern held that end of the craft on or near the bottom.

High navy officers announced they expected the Squalus to rise at any moment to a horizontal position 155 feet below the surface, but

Dismissal Notices Are Being Mailed To WPA Strikers

Many Return to
Their Duties at Wisconsin Jobs

400 Discharge Notices are Issued in Milwaukee County

Milwaukee—(P)—The WPA strike in Wisconsin was on the wane today as many workers, faced with dismissal if they prolonged their walkout, returned to their job.

Most of the large outdoor construction projects in Milwaukee opened again.

A group of men refused to return and formed flying squadrons which succeeded in closing six projects, which employed about 235 men. At one small project, workers walked off the job, saying they were leaving because threats had been made to their families.

The strikes began when WPA put into effect new regulations providing that the men work 130 hours a month, at the same wage as paid for 60 to 80 hours a month. WPA officials answered the strikers with notice that absence from work more than five days would result in issuance discharge notices.

Discharge Notices
Four hundred of the notices were issued in Milwaukee county last night.

Kenosha reported virtually all men on the early shifts went back to work. Similar conditions prevailed at Oshkosh, although 20 dismissal notices were issued there.

Nine hundred ninety four men voted by a large majority to resume work at LaCrosse.

At Eau Claire, 325 workers went back to work. Twelve were discharged.

The strike also ended at Fond du Lac.

Despite a 107 to 70 vote to continue the strike, all WPA projects re-opened at Waukesha.

Only 105 of the 1,800 workers in Racine were on the job. A mass meeting to decide whether to return to work will be held tonight.

The Wisconsin Workers' Alliance issued a statement last night urging "All WPA workers to avoid needless suffering and hardship by returning to their jobs Thursday."

The board of business representatives of the Milwaukee Building and Construction Trades Council today voted to permit the 1,500 WPA workers affiliated with its unions to go back to their jobs pending action by congress.

Following a one-day protest demonstration, all WPA workers in Manitowish returned to their jobs. At a mass meeting yesterday, the employees voted to return but indicated they would participate in a national walkout if one is called for July 20.

Three Convicted
In Record Holdup

Judge Remands Prisoners
To Jail Without Setting
Time of Sentencing

New York—(P)—A Brooklyn jury today convicted three men of first-degree robbery in the nation's biggest cash holdup—the $427,850 armored car robbery near the Rubel Ice plant on Aug. 21, 1934.

Judge William F. O'Dwyer remanded the trio, Stewart Wallace, Joseph Kress and Thomas Quinn, to jail without setting a date for sentencing.

Chief prosecution witness was plump little John J. "Archie" Stewart, serving 30 to 60 years in Dannemora prison for bank robbery. In exchange for a promise of immunity Stewart testified he and the three defendants were among a group of eight men who plotted for two months, "cracked" the armored car and escaped in boats.

Wallace already is serving 30-60 years in Auburn prison for bank robbery. Kress was brought here for trial from Sing Sing, where he is under a $1 to 7 year sentence for possessing a machine-gun.

They were accused of participating in the actual holdup and Quinn with piloting one of the two speed-boats in which the bandits fled from the Brooklyn waterfront with their loot.

Drowns While Trying To Bring Raft Ashore

Waukegan—(P)—George Martin, employed at the summer home of Frank S. Durham, Neenah, was drowned today in Silver lake, east of here, while trying to bring a raft to shore.

The victim went down when a rope he had tied around his wrist while swimming to the raft became wrapped around his arm and neck.

Three Wisconsin Rapids men, cruising in a motorboat on the lake recovered the body but resuscitation attempts failed.

POSED AS MAN

A minor traffic violation disclosed in Pasadena, Calif., that James W. Phipps, 46-year-old chauffeur, was in reality a woman who had masqueraded as a man for 23 years and twice had married women, according to Samuel Bailey, vice squad officer.

Neutrality Act to Face New Delay In Upper House

LaFollette Says Pittman
Resolution to Encounter Debate

Washington—(P)—Senator LaFollette (P-Wis.) reported a strategy committee of the senate's isolationist bloc decided today to demand full discussion in the foreign relations committee of a resolution aimed at restricting export of war materials to Japan.

Chairman Pittman (D-Neu.), author of the measure, had expressed hope the committee would act quickly on it at tomorrow's meeting. But LaFollette said he thought the 12 members who blocked consideration of neutrality legislation Tuesday would want to discuss several points at length.

Senator Clark (D-Mo.) said he would urge that either Secretary Hull or some other representative give the state department's views on the legislation. Pittman said this was agreeable to him, but he expressed doubt that Hull would appear.

Silent on Next Move
The secretary of state was busy today studying the situation brought about by the senate committee's vote to defer all consideration of neutrality revision until next session.

He told his press conference he could not say at this time what the next move would be. Both President Roosevelt and he have been exploring methods for obtaining action despite the committee vote.

With a big question mark hanging over neutrality legislation, congress concentrated on the administration's lending and social security bills amid serious talk of adjournment by Aug. 5.

Advocates of postponing neutrality debate declared that not even a special message from President Roosevelt would revive the proposal to repeal the arms embargo, sidetracked in the senate foreign relations committee.

Warplane Makers Drop
Aliens From Pay Rolls

Washington—(P)—To safeguard secrets of new warplanes designed for the expanding army and navy air forces, aircraft manufacturers are quietly weeding out aliens from their employees.

At the direction of the war and navy departments, several score foreign technicians have been discharged recently or transferred to other than military work.

Others hold their jobs only through short-term official permits, issued after a close tab has been made of their reliability.

Officials made the disclosure today, without divulging the number of persons affected, following an announcement by a Hartford, Conn., firearms plant that all aliens working in its machine-gun division would be let out immediately.

KILLED IN FALL

Waukegan—(P)—Frank Kiel, 70-year-old town of Vernon farmer, was killed yesterday in a fall from a hay wagon.

Thousands Dropped
For Ignoring Jobs
For Five Days

CONFAB CALLED

A. F. of L. President Convenes Meeting at Washington

New York—(P)—While the A. F. of L. high command speeded up its drive today to restore the prevailing wage rate to the new relief act, thousands of WPA strikers received dismissal notices for ignoring their jobs for five days.

William Green, A. F. of L. president, called a strategy meeting in Washington to carry out demands on congress and the president, sanctioned yesterday by federation unions.

The WPA gave no totals on the number of workers dismissed, but a survey showed administrators in several states had mailed large stacks of the discharge notices.

The strikes protesting the new requirement that all WPA employees work 130 hours a month were ignored by WPA Commissioner F. C. Harrington as he conferred in Chicago with state administrators on other restrictions of the new law.

Assail Hour Provision
The fire of the A. F. of L. was directed, however, at the 130-hour provision. Hereafter, skilled workers on WPA rolls have received the same hourly rate as similar craftsmen in private employment. This meant, in many cases, that a 150-hour work month for the same monthly wage would effect a decrease in the hourly rate.

A resolution to petition congress for revision of the law was adopted without a dissenting vote yesterday after the A. F. of L. leaders had listened to speeches proposing extension of strikes if congress adjourned without changing the relief measure.

Green denounced the order of Harrington dismissing those away from their jobs five days.

"I refuse to believe," he said, "that the president of the United States would stand for discrimination against workers because they quit their jobs to protect their rights."

The order was being carried out in many states, however.

In Minnesota, where two men were slashed with a knife in a disturbance at a WPA project, officials mailed 2,305 discharge notices—the first of an estimated 19,000 there.

In New York, acting Administrator Edmond H. Leavy announced dismissal slips were sent to 4,784 construction workers absent from their jobs since last Wednesday.

Some cities reported strikers were returning to work. The district WPA administrator in East St. Louis, Ill., said 6,000 of the 18,000 who left their jobs in his 10-county area had returned.

Afflicted Persons
Flock to Grotto in Quest of Recovery

New York—(P)—Scores of afflicted persons flocked to the new grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the Bronx today after hearing of the "cure" of Mrs. Anthony Geraci, wife of a tailor.

After bathing her crippled leg in the grotto spring, Mrs. Geraci discarded her steel braces and came, she said, and walked normally. She had dragged her leg for 14 years.

Her husband, who lost his faith in 1908 when an earthquake in Italy wiped out his entire family, went to church yesterday for the first time in 31 years. He said his wife's recovery was "a miracle of God."

"I can't explain it any other way except that it is a miracle of faith," said the Rev. Pasquale Lombardo.

Several crippled children, carried by their mothers, were among those who came to the grotto seeking recovery.

Ice Water Does Not
Harm Human System,
Journal Declares

Chicago—(P)—Ice water is not harmful, as many persons believe, the Journal of the American Medical association said today.

"There is no reliable evidence that 'ice water' (water from 37 to 50 degrees F.) causes chronic injury to the alimentary tract," it reported.

"Taken in large quantities with a meal, it probably, through coolness, slows down gastric digestion for a few minutes. But this is probably of little significance."

The Journal said that although tepid or warm water meets the real need of the body, many people prefer ice water because it tends to produce the impression that the real thirst is stopped almost at once.

Revive Arguments Of 1930 in Oleo Tax Repeal Debate

Charge Measure Hasn't Helped Farmer. Hurts State Industry

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—A committee of farmer legislators yesterday afternoon heard repeated and again the arguments on a question which has been in the public eye ever since 1930, whether or not it is good economics for Wisconsin to levy a 15 cent a pound tax on oleo-margarine, one of the principal by-products of the south's agriculture.

Hearing arguments on the proposed repeal of the tax law, the obviously hostile committee heard that Wisconsin farmers have gained nothing by prohibiting sale of the oleo product in Wisconsin, that prices of cheese, butter and milk have actually fallen since its enactment.

Wisconsin manufacturers are receiving cancelled orders from southern customers who mention the state's unfair tax on the south's vegetable oils as the reason.

Informal Boycotts Southern residents, on the farms and in the cities are engaging in informal boycotts of all Wisconsin products, industrial and agricultural, as a result of a campaign against the Wisconsin tax by their newspapers.

A legal boycott through retaliatory legislation is likely to result in the south.

By decreasing the outlets for cotton seed oil and other products of the southern farms, southern farmers are beginning to think of raising cows for a living—a direct threat to the state's prime dairy industry.

Trade barriers between states eventually accomplish nothing positive, but ultimately restrain trade and damage all parties.

In opposition to the repeal of the tax, the committee was offered arguments that Wisconsin dairymen are earning less income now than ever before in history, and can't stand a competitor in the form of the cheaper margarine product.

Can't Compete State farmers are heavily taxed, have a heavy capital investment, require modern and expensive machinery, and cannot compete with a product from cheap southern land, and cheap labor.

Wisconsin buys large quantities of other cotton seed products, in the form of cattle feed and industrial raw materials, therefore the southern boycott of Wisconsin goods is not justified.

Reading the proponents of the repeal were Assemblyman Reno Trego of Merrill, who introduced it at the request of former Assemblyman S. J. Gwilt of Rhinelander, Assemblyman Henry Berquist of Oneida, and County Commissioner R. J. Good, representing the Southern Conference of Governors.

Good, a mild and pleasant-mannered former Alabama commissioner of agriculture, declared smilingly that he hoped the disagreement between the south and Wisconsin on the oleo issue would not degenerate into a tariff war.

Says Farmers Unaided Southern states hesitate to resort to official boycotts, and hope to dispose of the oleo tax by "talking over the issue on its merits," he told the committee.

The oleo tax has not accomplished any of its purported purposes for the Wisconsin farmer, he asserted. It has not raised revenue, it has not increased dairy prices, nor has it stimulated dairy production.

"It has done no good for the dairy people whatsoever," he reiterated. He contended that oleo is not a competitor for the butter market, because oleo appeals only to the low income classes. For that reason, he said, the oleo people are interested in keeping butter prices high, for when the spread is narrow, butter sells over their product, as is shown in the drop of 30 per cent in oleo sales this year, he said.

"Wisconsin can do more for its farmers by repealing this law than anything I can think of," he said, pointing out that "we have cheap land, we have the proper rainfall, and cheap labor, so that if we decide to get into the dairy industry we can give you some real competition."

Hmils Cheese Tax He said that such an eventuality might be forced if discriminatory tariffs such as the Wisconsin margarine tax are continued and force the closing of southern oil outlets.

"You wouldn't like it if we taxed butter and cheese," he continued. Gwilt, Berquist, and Trego, McNally of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, cited business lost to Wisconsin manufacturers because southern dealers, wholesalers and consumers were angered at the passage of the Wisconsin butter substitute tax.

One of the biggest losers in Milwaukee, said McNally, was the Nunn-Bush shoe company, which earlier enjoyed a profitable southern market.

Berquist said that a Rhinelander paper company lost a huge order for the same reasons, while Gwilt

Mongolian Pheasants Will Go to Winners In Feeding Program

The conservation department announced today that prizes of Mongolian pheasants will go to the winners in the department's bird feeding contest conducted throughout the winter months. In addition, conservation groups which participated in the contest will receive 20 pheasants and 25 birds will go to the organization which furnished the greatest amount of feed.

The department said that 55 Wisconsin organizations took part in the bird feeding program. The groups reported they donated more than 111 tons of grain, arranged through farmers for approximately 1,711 acres of food patches of corn, buckwheat and other grains, and used 1,192 spike feeding stations and 3,596 hopper feeding stations in their work. In addition, the conservation department furnished 280 tons of corn and a proportionate amount of grit to cooperating organizations in its effort to maintain birds over the winter months.

Dr. H. E. Dearholt Dies Last Night

Milwaukee Physician Was Pioneer in Anti-Tuberculosis Work

Milwaukee — (P) — Dr. Hoyt E. Dearholt, 60, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association and a pioneer in national movements, died at Columbia hospital here last night after an illness of two months.

He was president of the Mississippi Valley Conference on Tuberculosis in 1925 and secretary-treasurer from 1919-20 was a member of the National Tuberculosis association and a director of the American Public Health association.

Dr. Dearholt was one of the founders of the Wisconsin Medical Journal in 1903 and a co-founder of the River Pines Sanatorium at Stevens Point in 1908, one of the first tuberculosis sanatoria opened in Wisconsin.

Under his direction Wisconsin became the first state in the union to introduce the sale of seals to raise funds to combat tuberculosis.

Dr. Dearholt was a past president of the Wisconsin State Medical Society and of the Milwaukee Academy of Medicine.

He was born at Reedsburg, Wis., in 1879, and he began his practice of medicine in Milwaukee after graduation from the Rush Medical school, Chicago. From 1912-20 he was associate professor and chief of the health instruction bureau at the University of Wisconsin extension division here.

He declared that other Wisconsin manufacturing firms, including a big Janesville wire fence factory, suffered losses in business in the south as a penalty for the tax legislation.

"They're practically boycotting everything made in Wisconsin," said Gwilt, speaking of southern anger against the state. "If we're going to lose dairy and manufacturing markets, I can't see where it's good policy for the farmers to tax a small competitor like the oleo-margarine product."

Claims Feeling Exaggerated Comments of committee members indicated that they received the proposal to repeal the tax law dubiously. Legislators usually adopt the recommendations of the hearing committees.

Chairman Ora Rice thought that the agitation for repeal of the tax came principally from the northern oleo manufacturers, rather than the southern cotton producer, who regards fiber as his staple, and oleo and other oil products of the seed only as an unimportant byproduct.

William J. Sweeney of DePere said that he spent two months in the south recently and "I couldn't find anyone there who knew that there was an oleo tax in Wisconsin." That proved, he figured, that southern feeling against the state has been exaggerated.

Good countered, however, with the statement that in recent months the question of inter-state barriers to trade has been publicized heavily, and that in the south Wisconsin has been painted as the chief offender.

Senator John E. Cashman, in previous years the most vociferous defender of the law which bears his name, did not appear. Other arguments against the bill were routine.

Said Milo Swanton of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture: "Wisconsin dairymen were never more sorely pressed in the whole history of the state than they are today. They are now in a weak position, this is a most inopportune time to foist upon us a new competitor."

The Wisconsin Farmers-Equity union, the Dane county board, Senator Jess Miller of Richland county, and the Swiss Producers organization were also recorded against the repeal measure.

Repeal said that a Rhinelander paper company lost a huge order for the same reasons, while Gwilt

Quotes Dickens' Daughter as Saying He Was 'Wicked Man'

London — (P) — A new book today quoted one of Charles Dickens' daughters as saying he was "a very wicked man" who, at 46, became the lover of an 18-year-old actress.

The volume, entitled "Dickens and Daughter," was written by Miss Gladys Storey, longtime friend of the late Mrs. Kate Perugini, one of the author's 11 children. Purportedly it was based on the daughter's memories of her famous father.

"More tragic and far-reaching in its effects was the association of Charles Dickens and Ellen Ternan and their resultant son (who died in infancy) than that of Nelson and Lady Hamilton and their daughter," wrote Miss Storey.

(The reference to the romance, one of the most famous in history, of Lord Nelson, Britain's greatest naval hero, victor of the battle of Trafalgar, with Lady Hamilton, wife of Sir William Hamilton, which led to the separation of Nelson and his wife, Nelson was killed at Trafalgar, Oct. 21, 1805.)

She recorded that Mrs. Perugini insisted "the whole truth" be told after her death, saying out all that was worst — all that was weakest in him. He did not care a damn what happened to any of us. Nothing could surpass the misery and unhappiness of our home."

The book recounts Dickens met blonde Ellen Ternan through amateur theatricals in 1857 and, keeping an early agreement with his wife, told Mrs. Dickens he had fallen in love with another. Mrs. Dickens left the author in 1858 after 22 years of married life.

Miss Ternan in later years married a clergyman. Mrs. Perugini, who was quoted as saying, "I loved my father better than any man in the world. . . I loved him for his faults," died in 1929 at the age of 89.

He suffered a slight brain concussion, fractured left arm, possible internal injuries and scalp lacerations. He was treated by a Marion physician and then removed to the Unionville community hospital where his condition today was reported favorable.

The art department will be moved to some other building.

Japs Puzzled Because Western World Is Cool to Formation of New Political Party in China

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE New York — (P) — Highly-placed Japanese are disturbed because of the apparent apathy with which the western world has received announcement that former Premier Wang Ching-Wei is heading a new political party, approved by Japan, to oppose Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government and lead China out of the wilderness of war into peace with Nippon.

Wang, whose name for a generation has rushed like a torrent through Chinese history, was expelled from premiership in Chiang's regime on Jan. 1. The premier was charged with "deserting his post and suing for peace" with Japan.

Since then Wang has been associating with Nipponese and now is slated to be premier of a rival central government which is to be set up for the Japanese-controlled territories. Obviously that is a matter of moment for Japan and perhaps for China.

Different Viewpoint If western nations haven't warmed up much so far to his development it was maybe because of a somewhat different viewpoint—not always adhered to—in such affairs. Our own Stephen Decatur summed the thing up rather well long in his famous toast: "Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."

This is to say that a lot of folk cling rather tenaciously to the idea that the political factions of a country ought to stand together in the face of an enemy, and settle their differences later. This school of thought is inclined to reserve decision regarding Wang's new position as opponent of the Chiang regime.

Wang's reply to this is that he proposes to save his people from a leadership which he feels is carrying them to ruin. He accuses Chiang Kai-Shek of carrying on the will of the communists. Wang maintains it is possible to make peace with Japan on a basis satisfactory to his own country. He calls for "good neighborliness, a common Chinese-Japanese anti-communist front and Chinese-Japanese economic cooperation."

Opposed Throne Wang Ching-Wei has lived much in the 54 years since he was born in Canton. He early became a violent opponent of the Dragon throne, and developed into a red-hot revolutionist.

He first came into international prominence when he attempted to assassinate the prince regent, father of the young Manchukuo emperor. Hsuan Tung, Wang was sentenced to life imprisonment but was released after the outbreak of the revolution in 1911.

Wang got his early education in Canton. Later he was graduated in law from Tokyo university and after that studied for several years in France. He traveled widely in the East Indies and South Sea islands, collecting funds from Chinese to promote the destruction of the monarchy.

Wang was a veteran member of the Kuomintang, or party which set up the Nanking government after the overthrow of the Peking government. His relations with the party were at times stormy. He was regarded as the leader of the extreme wing of the Kuomintang, and among those with whom he disagreed violently was Chiang Kai-Shek. That disagreement has persisted through the years, although the two have at times found it possible to cooperate.

The famous Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, China's grand old man, in 1924 picked Wang as his chief secretary and adviser. Indeed, it was Wang who was called to Dr. Sun's deathbed a year later to draft the great leader's political will for his people.

In 1925 while he was minister of foreign affairs Wang all but died from an assassin's bullet.

New 'Duck Stamps' Are Available at Local Post Office Migratory bird hunting stamps for the year beginning July 1 are available at the Appleton post office, according to Stephen Balliet, postmaster. Any persons, whether he hunts or not, may purchase the stamps for collections, or to aid the water fowl restoration program.

The "duck stamps" must be carried by hunters over 16 years of age while hunting ducks, geese or brant. It must be exhibited for inspection on request of any federal or state officer. The stamps are sold at $1 each and the proceeds are used to purchase suitable breeding, feeding and resting areas of land and water for water fowl restoration purposes.

Shawano County Tavern Owners Plan 'Crusade' Deprived of Slot Machines, Group May Fight 'All Gambling'

Shawano — Minor forms of gambling in Shawano county may be extinct before the summer is over, if current threats of a group of tavernkeepers are carried out. Deprived of revenue from slot machines in a busy tourist season for the first time in many years, the tavernkeepers propose to enter complaints against any and all forms of gambling, no matter how trivial in nature.

Rumors of a definite organization for the purpose have been circulating for several days, but definite action apparently has not been taken. Although some tavernkeepers in the city seem in definite sympathy with the idea, the talk is largely confined to tavernkeepers outside Shawano.

Several tavern owners said they had discussed a complete shutdown of "gambling" with fellow operators and that the move is crystallizing. The aim seems to be twofold — reprisal for the revenues they have lost and calling attention of the people to the part that lotteries and the like play in business enterprise with the idea of stirring movement toward possible legalization.

Church lotteries, raffling of door prizes at public events and charity benefits which take the form of gambling will be included in the ban, if present plans are carried out by the aroused tavernkeepers. One tavernkeeper hinted that the jam-boree to be sponsored by the county conservation club on July 29-30, which now advertises "300 door prizes," will be one of the early objectives. "If we can't make money, why should we allow any one else to?" another belligerently declared.

Corcoran to Vernon Despins, a lot in the city of Kaukauna. E. P. Finger to Walter W. Bushy, a lot in the old Fourth ward, Appleton.

Broadcasters New Radio Code Fails To Meet Problem

Doesn't Remove Paid Propaganda From Air, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington. The code adopted by the National Association of Broadcasters is a significant example of self-regulation by an industry which seeks to avert governmental regulation.

It is significant because there is considerable doubt whether any government regulation of radio would go as far as the broadcast-ers themselves have gone in an attempt to hold their channels free from objection.

In general, the rules governing the kind of broadcasts that should be carried in programs will meet popular approval, but the prohibition of the use of the radio for the discussion of "controversial" issues on paid time is certainly a novel departure and takes the radio completely away from the press.

The press permits anybody to buy space to express his or her views or the views of a public organization, irrespective of whether or not the issues are controversial.

The radio-broadcasters defend their action on this interesting premise: "If time be sold for the discussion of controversial public issues and for the propagation of the views of individuals or groups, a powerful public forum would inevitably gravitate almost wholly into the hands of those with the greater means to buy it."

Selling Products
In other words, radio time may be sold to certain commercial companies which have more capital resources than others if the purpose is to sell products, but ideas cannot be distributed or unfair attacks overcome by the use of paid time on the air. If the same theory were applied to commercial companies with respect to products, it would mean that the use of a powerful medium already has gravitated into the hands of those with greater means as compared with their weaker competitors.

If the broadcasting rule undertakes to equalize the financial condition that exists as between those who would use the radio for paid time, it lays itself open to the argument that it would be in the public interest to limit the use of the radio for commercial sales with respect to companies financially strong because their competitors didn't have the money to do likewise.

The contention is made that the broadcasting companies will furnish free time for the answering of attacks or for the propagation of information on controversial questions. But this is what the newspaper and magazine do anyway and they do not forbid the sale, moreover, of their white space to anybody unless it is sought to print something tainted with fraud or obscenity or slander.

In many a community the radio is the sole means of communication with the public in the evening hours because many communities, especially in rural areas, do not have afternoon papers. The opportunity to utilize the radio openly and frankly on a paid program where the sponsorship is clearly stated and understood is one that has important social implications. For any national organization to set in motion a series of rules denying the use of its facilities for special groups may some day be tested in the courts as a discriminatory action, and it is certainly open to question whether any trade association can legally advise its members to take concerted action to refuse to sell one set of citizens whilst furnishing facilities to another set of citizens.

The argument would be made, of course, that "controversial" issues are injurious to the listener audience's relationship to the stations and that to bar "controversial" broadcasting when paid for is to establish a legitimate classification, but it will certainly open up debate as to whether such a differentiation can legally be made.

Clearly a radio station might refuse to sell any time at all to anybody and be within its rights, but to say that it will allow a vendor of toothpaste, for example, to use the radio virtually without a limit and to bar the same manufacturer of toothpaste if he feels his company aggrieved by arbitrary action by a government bureau, might furnish an interesting bit of litigation.

Looking at the problem from the viewpoint of the broadcasters who have banded themselves together in a parade association, even the new rule does not meet the situation which is sought to be cured, namely, the removal of paid propaganda from the air. For it is well known that national propaganda organizations, possessed of money and talent, furnish free programs to the local radio stations which are widely used. To even matters up, the broadcasting association could, of course, offer to bear the expense of labor organizations, for instance, which wish to meet on even terms the propaganda of their wealthier rivals.

The rule which the radio companies may ultimately find the safest is to sell time to all comers according to established rates—for the spread of ideas or the marketing of products—so long as the programs do not violate laws governing libel, fraud or immorality.

Legion Juniors Trim Rapids in District Game

Third and Deciding Tilt Will Be Played at Stevens Point

New London — Hitting like big leaguers and taking advantage of the breaks, New London American Legion Juniors licked Wisconsin Rapids 18 to 12 in a return game on the home diamond here yesterday afternoon. They lost the first game at Wisconsin Rapids and next Monday afternoon the two teams will meet at Stevens Point to decide the district winner.

Four home runs were chalked up by the New London boys and one by the visitors. Gilman Hertz, the athletic first baseman from Weyauwega, pasted two home runs straight over the center field fence, a feat constantly sought after by adult league batters. Garret and Wilson each slammed one over the right field wall.

Fourteen New London men came to bat in a woeful second inning for the visitors as the locals drew six walks, four in a row, and batted out four hits for nine runs to lead 11 to 4. The Rapids pitcher had little on the ball, allowed 15 hits, 12 walks.

Three pitchers toiled for the Norris-Spencer boys. Dave Stern worked for two innings and allowed three hits, four walks and four runs and fanned two. Ken Poppy held the invaders to five hits in the next five innings, walked two, fanned eight. Coach E. M. Donner put Weldon Harris in at the eighth frame and he started by whiffing three men for no gain but hit a batter, allowed a hit and gave a walk for three runs in the ninth.

Score by innings:
Wisconsin Rapids 313 010 103—12
New London 292 130 001—18

Gunter's 'Inside Asia' Among New Volumes Available

New London — "Inside Asia," a companion volume to John Gunther's famed "Inside Europe," has just been received at the New London Public Library this week to head the offering of new books. With the same insight and dramatic reporting, Gunther lifts the lid off the continent of mystery.

Another book dealing with world politics is Norman Thomas's "Socialism on the Defensive," containing his acute observations of conditions abroad during a recent visit. Specialized non-fiction now at the library include Loren Carroll's book on self-improvement, "Conservation, Please"; and Charles Lloyd's book on language, "We Who Speak English." Two books for antique hunters are "Furniture of Olden Times" by Frances Clary Morse, an authoritative book on antique American furniture, and another edition of Esther Singleton's informal book, "The Collecting of Antiques."

For the amateur photographer the library has Jacob Deschin's latest book, "New Ways in Photography."

Roosevelt Pooh-Poohs Idea of Politics in McNutt Selection

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Two days ago I indicated that President Roosevelt probably would deny there was any political significance in his appointment of Paul V. McNutt as administrator of the New Deal security agency. That was a thoroughly safe forecast because it is part of standard political ritual to make such denials. Nearly everyone in public life carries on the pretense that he is not playing politics. It is one of the accepted proprieties, recognized by all reporters on political assignments as part of the game. In fact a public figure who frankly announced that he was playing politics would be put down as a boob. That a politician plays politics is taken for granted.

As was thus expected, President Roosevelt devoted considerable time at his press conference to pooh-poohing the political aspect of the McNutt appointment. He chided reporters for shallow reporting and warned them against going out on limbs regarding this appointment. He said most of us wouldn't print it, but he wanted to say that sometimes in making appointments there were other considerations than politics. He said Mr. McNutt had been selected because of his administrative ability and his experience in public affairs.

Mr. Roosevelt could very well consider that Mr. McNutt's administrative experience qualified him for the job. But if he gave no thought to the political aspects of the appointment, then he is unique in Washington. Mr. McNutt certainly wasn't blind to them. And almost at the very time the White House press conference was going on, Frank McHale, manager of the McNutt Presidential campaign, was announcing in Indianapolis that the campaign for delegates would go ahead in accordance with the resolution adopted at the Indiana Democratic state convention a year ago. The appointment has aroused more excitement among politicians here than anything else that has happened this year.

Opinion Divided On Implications

Opinion is divided as to what the appointment means, even among people in the administration. Within an hour I heard two conflicting analyses. One said that unquestionably Mr. Roosevelt would run again and that Mr. McNutt was now in line for second-place. Another said his guess was that Mr. Roosevelt would not run and that, if Mr. McNutt made good, he would be the obvious heir. All discussion shakes down, with variations, to one of these two conclusions. Friends of Mr. McNutt look upon the appointment as a build-up for the presidential nomination. If they had entertained the faintest suspicion of anything else they would not have urged him to take the post.

Seldom has an appointment so shaken the administration ranks. Because it is the president's decision, little protest will be heard but there is no lack of disappointment among some administration people.

Secretary Harry Hopkins is in Mr. McNutt's corner. The conscientious objectors will swallow hard and hope for the best. The political objectors, who are looking for an issue, will hope for the worst.

Bear Creek to Raise $3,500 for School Use

Bear Creek—Mrs. P. C. Batties was reelected school clerk at the annual meeting at Bear Creek high school Monday evening. F. W. Raiser was elected chairman of the meeting. # Hull to Testify At Hearings on His Dairy Bill

Measure Provides Basic Industry Classification, Stabilization

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Next Monday a subcommittee of the house agriculture committee, of which Congressman Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, is a member, will hold hearings on the dairy stabilization bill of Congressman Merlin Hull. Black River Falls Progressive Congressman Hull, himself, will be among the first to appear before the subcommittee, of which Congressman John W. Flanagan Jr., Virginia Democrat, will be chairman.

Congressman Hull has written to other members of House inter-organization committee which sponsored the bill, inviting them to attend the hearings, and has received a request to testify from the Dairyland Parity league, organization recently formed to support the bill. W. H. Bundy, of Menominee, is chairman of the league. Hull's bill would make dairying a basic industry and stabilize dairy production by regulating the cow population. It has the support of Congressman Murray, who urged the agricultural committee to grant Hull a hearing, and of other members of the Wisconsin delegation.

BORAH DIDN'T USE GLOVES

Senator Borah's recent address in the senate on the subject of American neutrality may be accepted as the attitude of that valiant band of Americans who have linked arms in the determination that this country shall never again be sold by idealists for the purpose of making possible the national aims of others.

Senator Borah has ideals but he is not an idealist.

He is one of the great independents, in fact one of the greatest our congress ever afforded. But in respect to neutrality he is only as independent as General Washington. He knows that an entanglement in Europe today is just as bad as it was 150 years ago. He might logically urge that it is worse since it costs more even though the traveling time be less.

Senator Borah dealt harshly with Great Britain and France, perhaps for the purpose of dissipating the illusions the American people have gathered concerning these countries merely because our President refers to them as "democracies."

Senator Borah wanted to know what was the difference at the Munich settlement between the attitudes and policies taken by democracies and those taken by dictatorships. He pressed the inquiry whether any of those concerned considered anything whatever except its own selfish interests. He wanted to know whether it isn't a fact that democracies and dictatorships will even agree and dovetail their actions when the purpose in sight is something pleasing to both their interests. And he insisted upon knowing of any instance in history where democracies and dictatorships quarrel excepting when their interests quarrel. And then he thundered to his conclusion by forcing the case of Czechoslovakia to the front when he said that when the time did arrive "to destroy, to literally murder the one real democracy in Europe," what was the difference between the conduct and actions of dictatorships and democracies?

Today Britain and France are both pursuing a course dictated almost exclusively by their own material interests. They are afraid of the Germans. Their fear of dictatorships is only occasioned because that form of government has put Germany on its feet in an armed sense. They were in their action toward the Germans much more disagreeable and unjust when Germany was a democracy.

Senator Borah served his country well.

WISCONSIN GETS A TOUCH OF LOUISIANA

The hearing before the Parole Board of the petition of Buckman and George for release showed the influence of Prexy Yellow Kid Smith's recent stand in Louisiana.

Buckman and George didn't bother about the fact they had pled guilty. They hurled that obstacle in a youthful manner b. blaming the newspapers for their imprisonment. "First one part of the press takes it up from one angle," said Mr. George, "and then another part of the press takes up this case from another angle." But the newspapers didn't create these angles. They didn't cheat hundreds of people out of several hundred thousand dollars. They didn't egg on the 'Buckman outfit to violate the law. They didn't set up the stooges down in Chicago to make wash sales. They didn't even hire the Buckman firm's lawyer who is now denounced by the prisoners in scathing terms.

All they did in fact was to sound the tocsin when these miscreants wanted silence in order to quietly plead guilty and take a short term in prison for a pyramid of offenses, monstrous in their heartlessness and hypocrisy.

But, too late, these prisoners may now bandy with "debts" and "investments," sidestepping and shadowboxing with groaning constructions of a law passed to prevent a form of theft even more vicious in some respects than one accompanied by a gun.

If these men are but guilty of the offenses they have already admitted, and can escape with less than a ten year term the arm of justice has become palsied.

FAST CIVILIZATIONS

E. H. Hull of the General Electric Research Laboratory has written an excellent article for that great company's Review pointing a straight finger at the truth that in ages gone our very remote ancestors had developed civilizations in which the marvels of inventions and the achievements of comfort are comparable with today.

He points out, to begin with, that the great Pyramid, built in 4700 B.C. has in its construction only "a mean error of but 7 parts in 100,000 which is but one-third of that which may be tolerated in a carefully machined part of a modern automobile."

Then there was that flood control and irrigation system built 3400 years before Christ with a dam impounding a water area of 700 square miles and which regulated the discharge of its waters into the Nile. Mr. Hull continues that "at the end of the pre-Christian era more attention was paid to practical devices containing the so-called modern machine elements such as wedges, jackscrews, pulleys, windlasses, levers, toothed gears and compressed air and hydraulic devices such as forced pumps, syphons and pipe organs," than any other time. And that in the century before Christ a Greek was already discoursing upon "the distillation of crude mineral oil to obtain different grades of oil" for the different purposes that occurred to him.

Our reverence for the work of our forefathers, whether those immediately preceding us in the construction of this government or those who lived many centuries ago, is not necessarily constructed upon sentiment albeit that emotion is likely to become involved but instead of becoming so pleased and satisfied with ourselves at all that has been accomplished within the last decade or generation perhaps we should be wearing sackcloth considering the little we have done with the start we have been given.

Even after the Christian era was underway there existed, as revealed by the relics taken from Pompeii and Herculaneum a polished civilization, in many respects the equal of today excepting in printing and transportation. The very instruments a surgeon used but this morning in an Appleton hospital were designed after those used 2,000 years ago. And but yesterday a mummy was uncovered in Egypt that exhibited as splendid an operation for trepanning as could be expected at Johns Hopkins and there in its skull was the gold plate to protect its most vital part.

But what remains unsolved for us is the cause of the paralysis which benumbed the mind and limbs of civilization and which set in about 1500 years ago; why did darkness so suddenly fall and continue so long?

Was it caused by the loss of the people's liberties? Was it induced when democracies turned to dictatorships? And if the people discarded their democracies why did they do so? Does liberty turn into license until it disgusts the people who once protected it?

These are interesting questions upon which a number of conclusions might be dared. But accurate answers are shrouded in mystery.

PLANTS AND PEOPLE

Considering some of our other importations what objections can we make to the transportation here of the giant odoriferous Krubi from Sumatra said to be the biggest flower in creation and to smell like a mixture of a very bad gas plant with a very old garbage pile?

Does anyone want it for their state flower?

It is said to flourish only when it has plenty of moisture and a noon day heat of about 90 degrees. Dr. Camp, curator at the Bronx garden says he thinks it smells something like a cross between ammonia fumes and hydrogen sulphide, suggestive of rotting fish.

But when the spirit of America arises in its people they are likely to tell us that here the Krubi will develop into a very decent flower, even altering its odor so as to make itself more agreeable to its surroundings.

"HAPPY DAYS"

Detroit news items advise us:

"The CIO extended its strike of automobile workers to Pontiac, Cleveland and Saginaw today to tie up all 1930 models of General Motors. . . . In Pontiac about 450 pickets surrounded the Fisher Body Works and six times repulsed the efforts of 50 policemen and 10 deputy sheriffs to open a way into the plant. Authorities finally gave up and 1000 workers went home. . . . The strike was called July 5 and deeply involved in it is the dispute of the CIO's battle with Homer Martin's AFL union."

General Motors has been trying to find out with whom it has to deal. To date it has been unable. Just presently the autocratic labor board is not particularly averse to a few riots and confusion. The boys must have some fun. And radicals must be kept sharpened or they will lose their enthusiasm.

General Motors is just another Belgium. It provides the arena of conflict. Both sides seem to make a date there. So it is caught between the devil and the deep blue sea.

Happy days. But for whom?

Grandmother's corner of the garden is sweet with old-fashioned flowers; Rosemary planted for remembrance.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

Mystic, Conn.—I came seeking sagas of the sea. I found only ghosts.

There was a time when acres of canvas belied to the breezes off all New England's shore. There was once a time when brigantines and barks and square riggers poked their noses into the dangers beyond the horizon. Men strode their decks and swung in their rigging. Men held their helms and furled their huge sails. Men!

Now they are gone, those blustering, steel-muscled salts. There are still whales to be hunted, fish to be caught, cargoes to be carried. Shanghai and Singapore and the pretty brown girls of the East Indies still beckon the New England seafarers—the fighting, cunning, fearless sailors—the storm winds whipping the Horn still shriek their challenge. The waves that pound Hatteras still thunder their defi. They call in vain. There are no more square riggers to answer the call; no more square riggers—and no more Men!

Old Rattler Morgan! Find me today a cap'n his equal. Find me today a Hearty who could spit on his finger, squint at the sky, smell the wind, and tell you there's a blow a-brewin' off the stern. Old Rattler Morgan! Chln-whiskered and sour-faced like one of Grant Wood's Iowa oils, old Cap'n Morgan was a God-fearing man whose Sundays. He could pray with the best of 'em—ashore, on Sunday. Come sailing day and come the sea, and Rattler Morgan could out-curse the whole crew. "When men are at sea," he would bellow, "there ain't no Sundays. Let out the canvas, you whale-bellied sons of Satan!"

Old Rattler Morgan, one of New England's hard-souled, foul-tongued, iron-willed Rulers of the Sea! Old Rattler, gone long since to Heaven or to Hell, but with his tradition still echoing in the howl of every New England gale!

He who does not see tragedy in Mystic and in all the New England shore towns from which square riggers and smelly whalers once sailed has no stomach for sentiment in these peaceful villages, kissed by the Atlantic and the Sound, are buried one of America's heartiest heritages. A boy amounted to nothing until he had gone to sea. A woman wasn't worth marryin' until she knew the fortitude of sitting long months, even years, waiting—waiting—

Somewhere in the lumbering seaports like Mystic lies the answer to the question: What happened to America's merchant marine? Maybe steam and turbines were the doom of sailing ships and of the men who sailed them. More likely, as Cecil Culler of Mystic suggests, it was something else. Culler, who has a museum of clipper ships here and who is an authority on those rakish sea travellers, suggests that it was the lure of the land—the lure of prairie farms, California gold and Nevada silver—that drew the salt from the blood of New England sailors' families. A change in the relationship of employer and employee, too, played a part. The masters of square riggers didn't arbitrate with their men. There were no conferences. Seamen took orders or suffered the consequences. Cat-o-nine-tails drew blood from many a seaman's back. The iron fists of mates and masters were forever ready to crash against any impertinent jaw.

Whatever the cause, these famous old Rulers of the Sea, these men with nerves of steel, bodies of oak and hearts of unchallengeable daring, have gone. In the Harbor of the Dead they spun their yarns; and from Eternity's crows' nest they squint down at the New Order of the Sea—gasoline motors, huge liners and lumbering tankers—and snort in disdain. The tragedy is best told in a single street in Mystic—a street that fronts on the water and which is lined with little cottages. Here, in the heyday of sailing ships, lived the Masters—the Cap'n's and the Mates. Here their families remained while their men sailed the seas. In those days they called it Captains' Avenue.

Today, insultingly, it is Gravel Street.

—The storm winds shriek their challenge— "The winds thunder their defi—Shanghai, Singapore, Hatteras, the Horn, the pretty brown girls, all beckon; and none there are to answer.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, July 16, 1914

John D. Rockefeller, oil king, observed his seventy-fifth birthday by playing golf with friends. He said he hoped to play as well when he was a hundred years old.

A total of 45,016 automobiles were then licensed in Wisconsin.

A party of 10 young Appleton people spent yesterday afternoon and evening at Brighton beach. The present were the Misses Ethel Locker, Irene Albert, Grace Williams, Anna Larson and Mildred O'Keefe, and Jack Otto, Guy Stevens, Al Heely, Carl Sherry and Ben Bitter.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Seymour and Black Creek churches was to be held in Seymour Wednesday, July 22. The Rev. T. H. Tippet, D. D. of Appleton was to preside.

10 YEARS AGO

Thursday, July 11, 1929

John C. Ryan, Appleton, superintendent of St. Mary cemetery, was elected president of the Association of Wisconsin Cemetery Superintendents and Officials at the closing session of the second annual convention of the association at Hotel Northern Thursday morning.

Approximately $55,000 worth of the new sized money arrived at local banks and the supply was soon exhausted.

Richard Thalke was elected master councilor of the Winnebago chapter of DeMolay Wednesday evening at Neenah.

Ten Kaukauna youths were to attend Citizens Military Training camp at Fort Sheridan that summer, according to Raymond Dohr, Appleton, chairman of the county enlistment committee. The boys were Harold Novak, Arthur Vanevenhoven, William Nelson, Dan Collins, Ross Farwell, Sylvester Lehrer, Francis Grogan, Robert Grogan, Clarence Liethen, Donald Grebe.

Both Athens and Sparta attempted to hold their populations down by exposing children to perish.

Lilies for quiet hours; Pinks and peonies, morning-glories. Hollyhocks pushing up; Blue delphiniums towering over Pansy and buttercup.

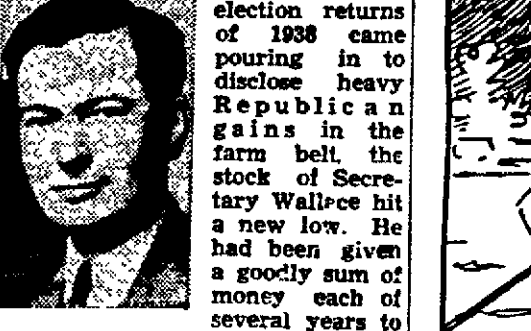

"Grandmother's corner," we have named it! A sunbonnet on her head, Grandmother spends the dewy morning Weeding her flower bed. Our blooms flourish in gay confusion; Grandmother plants neat rows. Here is the prettiest, quaintest garden! Each bud she touches grows.

Grandmother's life is a lovely garden With no evil weeds to mar What she has been for long years growing. How lovely the blossoms are! If there were storms to break the petals And shatter the lovely bells! If loneliness gathers in one small garden, Grandmother never tells!

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is staging what is politically known as a comeback.

Grover

loyal to the party. Lowering prices and rising Republicans indicated that neither had been accomplished fully.

For six months after the November elections there was almost constant talk of a new farm plan to replace the whole Wallace setup. But as time wore on the plans were pigeonholed and Wallace and his colony of farm thinkers down toward the Potomac waterfront began to advance ideas of their own.

He continued to plug for crop control allied with soil conservation. And he advanced two fresh plans, one of which was instantly popular and the other of which was instantly controversial. The country liked his idea of issuing special stamps to relief clients with which they could buy up surplus produce through the regular commercial channels. It pleased relievers, retailers and farmers all in a bundle. Moreover, it had a special significance. For the first time it gave Wallace a clientele within the cities. The stamp plan was designed for cities and first was put to work in Rochester, N. Y., and Dayton, Ohio.

Successful Souffle

The other idea was the subsidy of wheat and cotton exports. There was a quick but modulated yarn about the wheat subsidy but the cotton people, some for it, some against it, and some against the type of direct subsidy which Wallace proposed. Many feared it would wreck prices for the vast bulk of cotton now in storage.

But what happened after all this? The appropriations he requested were increased in several instances. What the House shaved off in there and the Senate added in fuller measure.

A writer named John Steinbeck wrote "Grapes of Wrath," a hearty novel about the dispossessed farmers of the California dust banks. It became a sort of "U.S. Tom's Cabin," to bestir sympathy for these 400,000 families driven by drought and debt from their mid-western farms.

To care for them, the administration asked $123,000,000, the money to be used both as relief and as a means of resettling many back on their farms or other land. The House approved the full sum and the Senate proposed to push it up to $140,000,000.

More and More Aid

In addition, $40,000,000 was advanced to the same unit for purchases of farms for landless farmers under a separate category.

Under the Commodity Credit Corporation several hundred million dollars may be lent to bolster prices of wheat, cotton, corn, and tobacco, a conservative estimate putting it at $200,000,000.

The reorganization bill placed Rural Electrification under Secretary Wallace, with $20,000,000 to spend. And the sprawling farm credit administration was buttoned together under his supervision.

Altogether he may have authority to pour out, or lend, almost as much money as WPA, which makes him one of the two top-ranking dispensers.

It may or may not have political significance for him personally. He would like to be president, no doubt, or even vice president. Six months ago he wouldn't have had a smattering chance at either. Now the climate has changed. Congress has given him about everything he asked. The wheat situation is showing signs of improvement and things are being done for cotton.

It is not a bad comeback for a half year.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

It shows what a crazy age we live in when we see one of those European countries deliberately driving out the tourist trade. And at the height of the season, too. Italy must be up to something when she orders all the cash customers out of the mountain resorts and scares 'em out of the rest of Italy in the bargain.

No matter how mad those European nations got in the old days, they seldom got so sore enough to give a tourist the bum's rush. They even went to let 'em right through the war lines in the sightseeing buses.

Maybe what Mussolini needs is an axis with good weather.

I see they're staging a sort of preview of the next war over there now. England sends 100 bombing planes over France, covering the exact mileage it would take to get to Berlin and other German cities and showing how easily it could be done. Germany pooh-poohs the demonstration, but it must make her realize that today it's not a question of being able to start a war; it's a matter of finishing it.

The situation has certainly changed. There was a time when, no matter how much France trusted England, the sight of a hundred British bombers over her in a time of approximate peace would have caused her to declare a war on her own account. And vice versa.

Where can a tourist go this summer, anyhow? I see they're even having a war at Newport.

THE PRESIDENT GOES IN FOR FISH CONSERVATION

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—It has been noted before in this space that there is a world of difference between Julius Peter Heil and the variety of politicians to whom the capitol has become accustomed.

Governor Heil has much to learn about the standard practices of politics, although he has apparently picked up a considerable number of bits of political lore since he stepped into office half a year ago.

It has frequently been observed that the most successful politicians are adept at remembering names, and particularly the names of persons who are regarded as being in a position to do good for them. For Heil's ability to remember not only the name of his casual caller, but many personal details is legendary.

Art Levitan, in many ways one of Wisconsin's most successful politicians, never forgot a face. The La Follette father and sons, also have the knack.

But not Governor Heil. Few men have a poorer memory for names than has the man who now is head of the state Republican party. Sometimes he confuses the names of his own secretaries, as when he calls "Brecke" (Brecke is one of Heil's closest, an administration friend, and long-time Republican figure).

Reporters who interview the chief executive frequently have to present themselves all over again whenever they call. At a recent banquet he introduced the wife of one of his secretaries by another name than her own. It is the same with members of the legislature. He sometimes can't remember who is the senator and who is the assemblyman.

NO CAMPAIGNING
Nor does Heil take advantage of all the opportunities at his command to strengthen the position of his administration, and his own stature as a party leader.

Recently Tiller, who wrote a pro-Republican column of newspaper comment, after Heil lifted him, spent a day off in preparation of an article for state newspapers sympathetic to the administration. It contained explanations and refutations of Progressive critics, and was intended to convey the point of view of a member of the governor's administration.

It was dispatched, but when Heil heard about it he told Tiller that "we're not running for office now, and it doesn't look good to be campaigning out of season." So Tiller dropped the idea.

Once one of the ablest political reporters in the business, Tiller is regarded everywhere, by friend and foe, as one of the smartest publicity men available. He is in Heil's service, but his time is spent in answering correspondence, receiving callers, and other duties which could be handled by another member of the staff while Tiller could be applying his talents to the cultivation of public opinion.

FOUR-POURRI

Many people are beginning to wonder about the chances for re-nomination of the three Coalition candidates who captured state office last year. Attorney General Martin, Lieutenant Governor Goodland, and Treasurer John M. Smith. . . . Will they be acceptable to the Republican party, it is asked. . . . Board of Control officials are working on a plan to raise beef for the state institution population. Penal and other institutions now have about 2500 dairy cattle, but must buy meat out-

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Wheat, to Eat

I am forty, but still subject to acne, as in youth. Tried many remedies, including your formula as given in your monograph on pimples and blackheads, but without much success. Then on your suggestion I bought a peck of wheat from a farmer and began grinding it in our old coffee mill and eating it as a breakfast cereal—and it is the finest cereal I ever did eat. Since I started this my pimples have cleared up and I am in fine condition. Is it the vitamin B-side? . . . Attorney General Martin didn't make any friends in the executive office when he recently declared Heil's veto of the state office building commission bill invalid. . . .

complex in the wheat, or what? (O.T.K.)

Answer—I dunno. But everybody should eat plain wheat in one form or another. I have a monograph "Wheat to Eat" that describes the benefits and gives various recipes. For copy send 14-cent stamped envelope bearing your address. If you ask any other question, the envelope requires three-cent stamp.

Nerves and Nutrition

I am getting excellent results from following the regimen given in your booklet on nerves. I take calcium and vitamin D regularly, also the iodine, and have improved greatly in the past four months. (Mrs. D. F. B.)

Answer—Both or all of the things you mention are rather food than medicine. Hence you will not relapse or suffer any setback when you rest from the supplementary food. Copy of the 60-page booklet "Nerves and Nutrition" mailed on request if you inclose 1-cent-stamped envelope bearing your address, and in coin twenty-five cents.

Monographs on Health

Please tell us what health literature you desire. Give us an instructive reading matter you have read and are interested in. (R. R. T.)

Answer—Monographs on following subjects are available—for any one send 14-cent stamped envelope bearing your address; for more than one send ten cents coin for every three monographs you want. Poison Ivy; Eczema; Foot Itch; Acne (Pimples and blackheads); Hay Fever; Dives; Pruritis (Itching without skin rash); Stomach Fright; Croup; Bed Wetting; Dandruff and Care of Hair; Prostatic Obstruction; Menopause (change of life); Sweating; Tobacco Habit; Varicose Veins and ulcers; Gaining Weight; Belly Breathing; Wheat to Eat; High Calcium Diet; Hernia; Quinine in Modern Medicine; Skin Itching; Gonorrhea; Syphilis; Sprays; Infection; Iodine Radiation; Headache and Migraine. Lists of other booklets will be included with the monographs mailed you. No reply can be made to requests if the stamped addressed return envelope is omitted.

I told him that when I consulted a specialist I didn't let go of my critical sense and I took only such advice as seemed sound. . . . no wonder intelligent folk everywhere complain about the exorbitant fees. (C. S. L.)

Answer—It does seem presumptuous, I suppose, for even an all-around "specialist" to attempt to tell a patient of your condition anything about nutrition. You ask my advice. It is this: When you consult a doctor try to let go of your critical sense and take the doctor's advice. If you can't do that, why waste your time and money fooling with doctors?

Hay Fever
Have you any literature on hay fever? I suffer terribly every autumn and would do anything to escape the annual visitation. (C.H.R.)

Answer—Send stamped addressed envelope for monograph.

Probe Report of $10,000 Deficit In WAA Account

Deficiency Said to be in Dairy Promotional Material

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The newly created governmental research bureau in the governor's office is investigating reports that the former Wisconsin agricultural authority overspent its appropriation by almost 10,000, it was learned today.

Information reaching the governor's office says that although the LaFollette-created and publicly endowed private corporation got an appropriation of $160,000 to spend during the brief year of its existence, it overdraw its account to the extent of $10,000.

Much of the deficiency, it is said, is represented in dairy promotion material which some sources have suggested could be purchased by the department of agriculture and markets, which disburses the regular state advertising and promotion funds for agriculture and dairying.

Body Discontinued
 The WAA was discontinued by act of the legislature this session, and expired on July 1. Taylor G. Brown of Oshkosh, (R), was author of the repealer.

Another question being investigated by the governor's office is the destination of the office equipment and supplies bought in the name of the corporation with state funds which now remain.

Meanwhile August Frey, director of the Heil investigating department, has assigned Louis B. Nagler, prominent in Wisconsin politics over a long period, to study the personnel policies of the state highway commission, which Governor Heil has frequently criticized for what he calls overstaffing.

Nagler is supposed to find means of economizing in the administration of the department. Governor Heil previously announced plans for wholesale dismissals there.

Another staff member has been assigned by Frey to look into the state's purchasing department. A thorough survey of all state departments and institutions will be carried on to uncover means of elimination of duplications, it has been announced.

NADINE ST. JOHN TRAINS BIG FELLOWS FOR COLE CIRCUS

Nadine St. John, youthful elephant trainer with the Cole Brothers circus which will be at the N. Badger avenue showgrounds Saturday, July 22, believes the big fellows to be the most intelligent of dumb animals. Yet they are so big and cumbersome that they really are helpless, she says. Miss St. John comes from the Ural mountains of Europe and has spent most of her life with the circus. Her father trained and educated more than 200 elephants. There are 20 elephants with Cole Brothers circus. A street parade will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning and performances will be at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 8 o'clock in the evening.

Redecoration Voted For School Interior

Leeman—The annual school meeting of the Leeman district was held at the school house Monday evening. Herman Schroeder was chairman of the meeting. Fred Fack was re-elected as treasurer of the district. Other officers serving are: Lewis Reese, clerk, and Malcolm Leeman, director. It was voted to repair and redecorate the interior of the school building and to make repairs for better heating.

A picnic and family gathering was held Sunday at Pine lake by the Wilkinson and Svetnicka families. The party included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Svetnicka, Miss Elsie Svetnicka, Ward Brugger, Lawrence Svetnicka, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Svetnicka and daughter, Margaret, and son Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilkinson, Jr., and daughter Beverly and son Tommy Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Larson, Miss Joyce Carter, John Tickler, Jesse and Glenn Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilkinson, Sr., Misses Mable, Nora and Katherine Wilkinson, John and Francis Wilkinson of this place, Miss Esther Olson of Green Bay, Avery Wilbur of Navarino, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Bellin, daughter Shelby Jean and Miss Marion Wilkinson of Appleton.

Funds Still Available For Green Bay Survey

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The state emergency board has informed Assemblyman Harold A. Lytle of Green Bay that it has approved the continuance of a $1,100 balance for the Green Bay east river sewage survey which lapsed at the end of the fiscal year on July 1.

The original allotment was made by the board last year, but a balance remained unspent at the end of the fiscal year. The money is being used by the state board of health to determine the long-sought cause of the river odors which have been subjects of complaints over many years.

Lytle was told by Charles McKee, financial assistant of Governor Heil, that the continuing allotment was approved without controversy.

KEEP COLOR IN STOCKINGS!

A SERIOUS CAUSE of faded stockings now found to be the alkali in soap suds. So suds your stockings with Vel, marvelous new hard-water suds made by Colgate for fine fabrics. Vel is not a soap. Contains no alkali to fade the delicate color of stockings. Makes big suds in cold water, thus ideal for all fine fabrics.

See Vel make mountains of billowy suds, yet it leaves no ring around the bowl, showing that Vel also leaves no soap-scum in fabrics to dull the sheen and cause that "cottony" look.

Ideal for all fine fabrics because Vel washes things cleaner and newer looking. Thusthey last longer and keep their silky luster.

NOW see stockings keep their delicate sheerness and fresh color, amazingly longer. See woolens and underwear regain bride-like freshness and color! Colored prints sing with radiant sparkle! Results are startling because science has found a way to make a wonderful new suds, called Vel, that contains no alkali to fade colors. And Vel can't form ruinous soap-scum, cause that "cottony" look in fine fabrics.

You can feel this slippery, slimy scum in soap suds. But these amazing new Vel suds feel soft and pure.

That's because Vel is not a soap. It's a special new hard-water suds perfected by Colgate. It makes as much as 5 times more suds than expensive soap flakes in hardest water. And it makes hardest water act soft as rainwater.

Moreover Vel makes abundant suds in cold water—so Vel is ideal for fine fabrics.

You can see why Vel is better than the finest soap-flakes for fine fabrics, because Vel does not form a ring of soap-scum around the bowl. That proves Vel can't leave ruinous soap-scum to give so dingy things that "cottony" look, and because Vel contains no alkali, it helps colors keep fresh much longer.

So easy on hands, too, because Vel is neutral—contains no acid, no alkali to irritate the skin.

It even outlasts pure soap 2 to 1 in hardest water! Buy Vel today at grocers. Made and guaranteed by Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company.

TRY VEL AND YOU'LL NEVER GO BACK TO SOAP AND WATER SOFTENERS!

Doctors Advise Use of Salt To Combat Effects of Heat

Madison — "Eat a lot of salt to prevent heat exhaustion," the state medical society warned in a health bulletin today.

"Because the salt supply in our systems is greatly diminished through excessive perspiration, and because salt is necessary in the system, we must make up for this loss by adding salt to our drinking water in the proportion of one level teaspoon to a gallon of water and increasing the amount used on food, we may replenish the supply of salt in our bodies."

"Heat prostration or exhaustion is caused by prolonged exposure to heat, combined with physical exertion. Farmers, who are exposed to the direct rays of the sun and excessive heat in the fields, are often victims of heat prostration. During the summer months, therefore, farmers should institute preventive procedures."

"Laborers exposed to excessive heat in industry may lose as much as two gallons of water in a period of eight hours through excessive perspiration. The use of salt tablets to combat the ill effects of heat has become a standard procedure for the work of the man in the boiler room, foundry, bakery and the like."

Two Ways
"We may fall victims to heat in two ways: 1 Heat prostration, and 2 Heat exhaustion. Heat prostration usually renders the patient unconscious. The skin is cold, pale, and clammy; the victim is usually thirsty and has a stomachache and frequently vomits. He should be moved to a comfortable place and should lie down with his head slightly elevated. He should be kept warm and after consciousness has been regained he should be given hot coffee."

"Heat exhaustion on the other hand, renders its victim semi-conscious with the skin hot and dry and the face flushed. In this case, the victim should be moved to a cold place and cold water or ice applied to the head and wrists."

"Heat cramps may occur in the absence of other manifestations of heat prostration. This condition is characterized by muscular twitchings, abdominal cramps, nausea, vomiting and diarrhea, and is due to an increased loss of salt through perspiration. Drinking large amounts of water, beer or other fluids will aggravate this condition. Injections of salt solution by the physician will give prompt relief.

"Protect yourself from heat prostration by using salt in your drinking water and sprinkle a little more than usual on your food."

With WPA strikes in numerous parts of the country against new work hours prevalent at this time, the labor, employment and social security committee placed on record its report which declared:

"No organization of government employees should be recognized for any purpose or given any standing under any statute or regulation unless such organization shall expressly in its constitution renounce and bar the weapon of the strike as a means of coercing government and thereby obtaining its aims."

While the report did not mention WPA strikes specifically, Judge William L. Ransom, New York, chairman of the committee, declared the report was meant to include such walkouts.

Elks' Inhalator Will be Used in Emergency Cases

Life Saving Machine Installed in Kunitz Ambulance

The Appleton Elks lodge, which recently purchased an inhalator to be used in cases of emergency in Appleton and vicinity yesterday had the machine installed in the Oscar Kunitz Ambulance. The machine was bought for $230, the funds being voluntary contributions.

Emergencies in which the machine may be used are such as: reviving victims of illuminating gas, carbon monoxide poisoning, drowning or electric shock, helping a newborn baby start breathing or easing the distress of those suffering from pneumonia, asthma or other suffocating diseases.

The inhalator is an ingenious but simple apparatus, easily operated and safe in the hands of those without medical training. It's most important part is a cylinder containing carbon dioxide, a mixture of oxygen and carbon dioxide. Rubber tubing connects with a collapsible "breathing" bag and a length of flexible hose connects the bag with a facepiece which fastens over the patient's nose and mouth. The Elks' inhalator is equipped that two persons may be treated simultaneously.

Ross Williams is chairman of the committee which was in charge of the selection of the inhalator for the local lodge's part in the national Elks program to carry out some civic program each year.

Quashes Indictment Against 43 Individuals and 14 Milk Industry Groups in Chicago

regulate the acts charged in all four counts of the milk indictment.

In a statement separate from the 31-page decision, the court said: "The court has arrived at the conclusion that under the agricultural adjustment act, as re-enacted in the agricultural marketing act, the sole, plenary and exclusive jurisdiction over the marketing of milk in the Chicago area, so far as such marketing affects interstate commerce, is vested in the secretary of agriculture."

"The acts referred to confer ample power upon the secretary of agriculture whereby his orders may be enforced. It results that prosecutions for violation of the Sherman (anti-trust) act, so far as the marketing of milk is concerned, are withdrawn from the Sherman act."

4 Conspiracies Alleged

The court said it was sustaining demurrers to the third count of the indictment on the ground it charged four distinct and independent conspiracies in a single count.

Judge Woodward held also that a motion to quash the indictment on the contention that it was returned by an illegal grand jury should be overruled, and that the motion to quash service on Borden-Wieland, Inc., a dairy products dealer, should be sustained.

The indictment alleged conspiracy to fix prices, suppress competition and control the milk supply in the important Chicago area; giving "preferential treatment" to farmers dealing with the accused dairy "organization" in the inspection of dairy farms; and the refusal to inspect farms of producers desiring to sell to dealers outside the alleged monopolistic combine; using "threats, intimidation and violence" to project major distributors from competition.

In criminal cases the government only may appeal from decisions based on an interpretation or construction of the constitutional laws. Such an appeal lies directly from the lower court to the United States Supreme Court. The future course of the government in this case, attorneys said, will be left to a decision by Attorney General Frank Murphy.

Launch Trial of Suit for $35,000

A civil suit for $35,000, charging malpractice, brought against Dr. R. V. Landis, Appleton, by Gerald Miller, 1822 S. Oneida street, opened in municipal court yesterday with Judge Edgar V. Werner presiding. In another action being tried at the same time, Clarence Miller asks damages of $10,000 claiming loss of his son's services.

The suit is an outgrowth of a football game accident in 1934, in which Gerald Miller suffered a broken left arm. The fracture was reduced by Dr. Landis. The plaintiff claims that the physician failed to determine the condition of a nerve allegedly severed and advised him against going to a specialist. As a result, it is alleged there is a permanent injury to the lower left arm.

Dr. Landis, in his answer to the complaint, claims the nerve was not severed, but contused, and that any permanent injury to the arm is a result of an operation, neither advised nor performed by him.

The jury hearing the case is composed of Albert Brockman, John Kuchenbecker, Otto Stammer, William Reetz, Edward H. Mueller, Henry Joeks, Walter Steenis, Emil Springstroh, Michael Peters, Fred Pantzloff, Michael Kerrigan and J. A. Merkle.

Republicans Say State Milk Price Statute Doomed

Influential Legislators Think Law Won't Be Reenacted

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—State retail milk price control will end at the expiration of the present control statute, influential legislative Republicans said today.

Plans to kill the proposal to reenact the milk price fixing law were decided upon recently when Republicans found an overwhelming sentiment of dairy farmers who are not benefiting by the law opposed to reenactment, it was said.

Although a very vocal support for a reenactment has been mustered by those farmers and dealers who benefit from the operations of the price codes in the 33 urban markets of the state, administration leaders feel that the majority of farmers who are receiving low prices from butter and cheese markets resent the apparent favoritism for their colleagues in the dairy business.

It has been estimated that only 5 per cent of the milk producers in the state are situated within the controlled market areas, and therefore benefitted by the retail price regulation.

Say Surplus Increased

It has been charged that the artificial leveling of prices has curtailed consumption, so that the amount of surplus milk diverted to cheese factories and creameries has been increased with the result that the price schedules in the latter have been depressed.

Fluid milk area farmers get about twice the price received by the cheese and butter farmers. In most areas the fluid milk price paid to the farmer is $2.10 a hundredweight. The average price in Wisconsin for all milk this year has hovered around $1 a hundred.

Although the milk price law has apparently functioned satisfactorily for half a dozen years, sporadic protests broke out early this year. Particularly in northeastern Wisconsin, violations of milk price orders have been frequent. The department of agriculture and markets, administrator of the act, now has three prosecutions pending in the courts of Outagamie and Manitowish counties.

Heil's Signature Kills LaFollette's State Utility Plan

Madison—(P)—The state utility corporation, created in 1931 under former Governor Philip LaFollette's first administration as an agency to carry out a state power program, was abolished yesterday in a bill signed by Governor Julius Heil.

The corporation never was active due to an unchanged constitutional provision forbidding the state from engaging in internal improvement works.

Heil also signed a bill fixing Milwaukee election poll hours from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m. and permitting both second and third class cities to have their polls open during the same hours.

Other bills signed would permit any elector or a town village or board to initiate action for consolidation of school districts in second and third class communities, and would allow the state to compensate a property owner for damages caused by bears.

City's Attorney Defends Council Action on Note

McAndrews Says City Has Right to Raise Fund, Cancel Indorsements

Kaukauna—The legality of the council's cancelling the indorsements on the $4,000 Moloch Machine and Foundry note was defended this morning by Harry F. McAndrews, city attorney. Replying to arguments advanced by Emmet Rohan, local attorney, and Arthur Hoolihan, who objected before the council, McAndrews said the city had first a right to establish an industrial fund, and second, a right to cancel the indorsements.

The Wisconsin statutes provide that cities of the Fourth class may set up a fund, not to exceed $2,000, after a majority vote following a referendum, he maintained. The voters of Kaukauna balloted more than 2 to 1 in favor of setting up such a fund.

This fund shall be "to and to encourage the location of manufacturing, industrial and commercial plants . . . and for necessary incidental expenses in relation thereto." McAndrews quoted from the statutes. "The moneys shall be used by the council for such purposes." According to the statutes the appropriation is mandatory each year, another referendum being necessary to stop such an expenditure, the city attorney said. Any doubts as to the city's action in establishing a fund under this statute rest only upon the conformance of the statute with the state constitution. The supreme court must decide this point—cities can only act according to the law, McAndrews said.

Had Right to Vote
McAndrews also said that Mayor Lewis F. Nelson's action in voting against a referendum on the payment of the note, breaking a council deadlock, was procedurally correct. Nelson is one of the nine signers of the note.

The aldermen who voted to cancel the indorsements had a legal right to do so, and are not liable, McAndrews said further. In a letter to councilmen Rohan said "you may find yourself personally obligated to pay this note which you saw fit to let the indorsers out of." Joseph Lefevre, city attorney when the industrial fund was set up, said this morning there was no question as to its legality.

Kaukauna — The date of the annual flower show will be set and a general chairman chosen as Kaukauna Garden club meets at 7:30 tonight at the public library. The show will be held sometime in August at the high school.

Rotary Scout Troop Will Hold Contests Monday and Tuesday

Kaukauna—The annual patrol contests of Rotary Troop No. 20 will be held Monday and Tuesday at Rohan's woods, according to Wallace Mooney, scoutmaster. The winning patrol will receive the Rotary scout cup. Patrol leaders are Eugene Lange, Beaver; Ralph Mooney, Wolf; Lawrence Schiedermayer, Fox; and Richard VanLanen, Flaming Arrow. Patrol leaders met last night with their scoutmaster to complete arrangements for the contests.

The scouts will meet at 4:30 Monday afternoon at the ball park and hike to Rohan's woods. Each patrol will give a stunt at that night's campfire, with Glen Miller leading songs.

Tuesday morning outdoor tests will be passed and contests staged, including fire by friction, water boiling, knot tying, tent pitching, stretcher race and nature study scavenger hunt. Cooking and campcraft will be judged over both days.

Board of Education Seeking Bids on Coal

Kaukauna — The board of education voted to advertise for bids for 150 tons of split coal and 300 tons of stoker coal, to be used in city schools next winter, at its regular meeting this week. Bids will be received by Edward Rennie, secretary, up to 7 o'clock Monday evening, July 24.

Marshall Bayorgeon was appointed to the public health and education committee, with Peter E. Van Dyke resigning. James T. Judd, high school faculty member, and Carl Giordana, student representative, were confirmed as members of the city athletic council.

PEOPLE In Sports

By the AP Features Service

JOHN BROMWICH, who uses a two-twisted tennis swing, again ranks as No. 1 player in Australia. He will probably be the No. 1 man on the Aussie Davis cup team, favored to meet and defeat the U. S. in the challenge round. Vivian McGrath, No. 3 last year, is now No. 6.

VIRGINIA GURNEY, 17, of Salt Lake City is a "ski queen." That means she traipses around the U. S., enters ski meets for experience. She rarely wins, but her instructor says she will, some day. "She's got rhythm," he explains. "She's fearless. She'll try any slope." In midsummer she skis in Utah and Wyoming.

PAUL CHOTTEAU, 41, a French violinist, trained at Coney Island this spring for an attempt to swim the English channel both ways in July. He picked July because tides and currents are weakest then. Last year he tried a distance swim but was misled by an escort boat and paddled 60 miles, getting nowhere.

ALICE MARBLE, U. S. women's tennis champion, recently won the Wimbledon championship in England. Like Patty Berg, the golf champ, Alice played sandlot baseball as a kid. She's from Elmhurst, California. When she was 15, her father died and she was a tennis racket to get her away from that baseball.

FRIDAY'S GAME
Little Chute at Kimberly (night).

BY BILL DOWLING

KAUKAUNA — A barrage of extra base hits proved too much for the Kimberly Papermakers last night, with the Mel-low Brews taking a 10 to 7 decision in Fox River Valley league play. Three runs in the eighth enabled the Kaws to break a 7-all tie. Each team collected nine hits, with the winners hitting six doubles, a triple and two singles.

Gus VanderZanden went all the way for the visitors, while Eddie Schuler, starting Kaw hurler, was knocked out in the third inning, when Papermaker bats accounted for five runs. Marvin "Dago" Schuler then took command, giving up but four hits in five innings. The Brews broke into the run column first, pushing over three tallies in the second. Icky Van Drasek was safe when Bowman took his foot off the bag too soon. Joe Gertz sacrificed him along to third, and Ralph Wurdinger sent him home with a double against the left field fence. C. Schuler fled out, but Martens survived when Bowman dropped the ball. Martens then stole second, with Wurdinger coming home when Jack Wildenberg threw to that base. Eddie Schuler's double down the right field line then plated Wurdinger.

Tuffy Horn's home run over the centerfield fence with two aboard climaxed the Kimberly third, when five runs scored. J. Wildenberg, Peotter and Bowman had singles, with E. Wildenberg drawing a walk. The Kaws went back into the lead in their half, as Gertz and Martens doubled. Kappell and Wurdinger received walks and Bob Van Drasek was hit by a pitched ball. Three runs being the final outcome.

Kimberly tied things up in the fourth, when VanderZanden drew a walk and came home on Peotter's single, after a walk to Kobs had moved him along. Neither team scored until the seventh, when both counted once. VanderHeiden's double sent Horn, who had reached second on Gertz' error, the Kaw shortstop throwing over the first baseman's head, over the plate, while for Kaukauna Gertz tripled to right and ran home while Art Hofkins was miffing C. Schuler's grounder.

Icky Hits Double
Dago Schuler flew out to begin the Kaw eighth. Joey Vils singled out over second. Bob Van Drasek bounced to Hofkins, but both were safe when the throw to second was too low to force Vils. Ves Kappell lofted to the outfield, but Icky Van Drasek doubled down the left foul line score his brother Bob. Gertz' single sent Icky home, with Gertz out as he tried for an extra base.

Clintonville and
New London Will Play Benefit Tilt

Meet Tomorrow Night on Trucker Diamond; Mitt
Card Also Planned

CLINTONVILLE—Friday evening the Clintonville FWD Trucker baseball team, winner of the first half title of the Northern State league, will cross bats with the New London baseball team. The game is being planned as a benefit for Mrs. Herb Palmer, widow of the former Trucker shortstop and field captain. In addition to the game there will be free entertainment in the form of boxing.

The reason New London was picked for this game is that Phil Palmer, a brother of Herb, plays right field for the Londoners. Another reason is the rivalry between these two teams. On July 4, New London really had a right to celebrate as it was the first time it defeated the Trucker in baseball in several years. Not only did the Londoners win but they rubbed it into the first half champs, 12 to 7.

Both New London and the Trucker fell along the wayside last Sunday, the last day of the first half schedule. New London took an 8 to 2 decision on the chin while the Trucker dropped two games, one in the afternoon at Manitowoc 5 to 2 and then at home at night when Seymour scored a 7 to 1 victory. The 7 to 1 victory for Seymour also was a no-hit game for the Seymour hurler, Dick Weigand.

A capacity crowd is expected for this tilt from the looks of the advance ticket sales. The tentative starting lineup for New London will show Steffen at first, Hawk at second, Grignon at short and O. Krohn at third. In the outfield, Palmer, Vander Walle and Westphal will show. The battery will have either Marilyn Munch, Cliff Decker or Ed Abbott doing the hurling with C. Krohn doing the catching.

For the Trucker, Ray Trimble will be at first, Ty Steff at second, Don Gunderson at short and Rolie Kersten at third. In the outfield it will be either Matt Wagner, Larry Casper, Al Johnson or Leo Smith. Sid Fells, John Tomlin or Willie Baasch will do the hurling with Gene Volkman on the receiving end.

STATE AMATEUR GOLF TITLIST TRIES BUTTE DES MORTS

Lyn Lardner, Oconomowoc, defending state amateur golf champion, isn't going to be caught "cold" when he puts his title on the block at Butte des Morts, July 31. So yesterday, Lardner, his father, and several Oconomowoc friends visited the course and played 18 holes. He turned in a 69, three under par, and will be back tomorrow for another warmup session. The picture, taken on the tenth tee, shows the Oconomowoc party and Everett Leonard, B.D.M. pro, watching a drive. The picture shows, left to right, Leonard, H. E. ## H. Smith, Old Dog With New Tricks, Features PGA Meet

BY BILL WHITE
NEW YORK — (P) — Advice to golfers department:
Don't believe the aged adage that you can't teach an old dog a new trick or two.
Take the case of Horton Smith, the blond Chicagoan, who has been "often a bridesmaid but never a bride" in 12 years of topflight golf, or more simply, a lad who never has won a major golf championship.

Worried, he went to Alex Morrison last spring and they probed Horton's game — which had been good enough to win the North-South, the Masters at Augusta twice, the French open and plenty of others — to find out why it didn't click when the big blue chips were down.

They found out, and as a result Horton was one of the real threats of the current P. G. A. tournament. Today he was pitted against E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, who works for Horton's brother out in Oak Park, Ill.

Horton entered the 36-hole quarter final round at the Pomonok C. C. yesterday with a well-turned-out 4 and 2 victory over Clarence Doser, who rudely upset Ralph Guldhall the day before.

Harrison got into the select group with a 27-hole victory over Bruce Coltart.

Marching along with the mighty Smith in today's lower bracket were Emerick Kocsis, the slugging surprise from Michigan, and open champion Byron Nelson.

In the upper section defending champion Paul Runyan, who celebrated his 31st birthday yesterday by handing young Ben Hogan a 2 and 1 licking, met handsome Dick Metz, and Rod Munday, Runyan's assistant, will have his hands full with Henry Picard, the Hershey hurricane.

Those eight are all that are left after as rounding a third round of championship golf as the venerable P. G. A. ever has seen.

Whitlow Wyatt Is Finally Stopped; Loses to Pirates

Had Won Eight Straight; Yankees Lose Some Of Their Prestige

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It is a pleasure to report that Fireman Mace Brown is still as good as over at putting out those four-alarm affairs.

The Pittsburgh smoke-eater was the big blaze last night as the Pirates knocked off the Brooklyn Dodgers 3-0 before a crowd of 29,481 in the only game on the major league program.

Fireman Brown's latest job of answering the alarm was to put the chill, convincingly and completely, on Whitey Wyatt, who had won eight straight up to last night and hadn't been beaten in the National league campaign.

The fireman started the game last night, gave up just six hits, ran into trouble only twice, and when he did he just ran out again.

The victory boosted the Blues into a fifth place tie with the Danfords boys in the National league standings.

Both sides of the big leagues got down to the serious work today of getting the second half of the schedule under way.

At the moment, the matters of most importance were, reading from left to right, (1) whether that unbelievable losing streak of five straight for the Yankees suffered over last weekend was going to continue on their current invasion of the west, and (2) just how much the Cincinnati Reds, fighting to hang onto their shaky National league lead, were going to miss Ival Goodman in the next 10 days until he recovers from the injury he suffered in the all-star game.

The Boston Red Sox, over the weekend sliced the once-stratospheric American league lead of the champions to a somewhat earth-bound 64 games.

The Orloles, playing Brooklyn style, completed a triple play in the ninth inning. The first two batters for Kloes hit safely and advanced on bad pitches. With men on second and third, Curry then hit what looked like a sure hit through shortstop. Shafer left off third, while the shortstop went back to pull down the hit and he threw to Hoffman at third and on a perfect throw to first the runner was called out.

July 26 for European competitions, including the Bank Holiday meet at London August 7 in which Wooderson will run the mile.

Wooderson's charge in the 1,500-meter footrace a fortnight later at Lincoln, Neb.

It was Rideout, one of the running twins from North Texas Teachers college, who collided with the Briton on the last curve in the much-ballyhooed mile at Princeton. Wooderson, who has raced the fastest outdoor mile in history, charged that the bump threw him off stride and caused him to lose the race.

Blaine finished fourth, behind Chuck Fenske, Glenn Cunningham and Archie San Romani, and a step ahead of Wooderson. To Wooderson, and the majority of the country's track enthusiasts, the Princeton mile was to be a duel between Wooderson and Cunningham, with perhaps Fenske as an outside challenger. San Romani and Rideout were just added starters.

Likewise, Rideout wasn't figured much of a threat in the AAU. But Rideout knew that the AAU victor would be named to an American track team that sails for the purpose of harassing Wooderson. Rideout proved that he can keep step with the best of the distance runners, and that he definitely had a chance to win at Princeton.

The Lincoln race gave the lie to reports from some quarters that Rideout was in the Princeton meet only for the purpose of harassing Wooderson.

Wooderson obviously had a bad day at Princeton. His fast times during the last year or so definitely rank him as the world's best miler and on his home course, Woody likely will run a race too speedy for the Texan. But you can bet that Rideout will go all out to give him a battle.

Post-Crescent, Powers Wind Up Drills for Grudge Battle

POST-CRESCENT softballers engaged in a strenuous practice drill at Wilson school diamond last evening as a climax to their drills for the much heralded game against the Power Company at 5:30 Friday evening at the Roosevelt school diamond. The team, under the careful guidance of Manager Eddie Sternard, came through the extensive training period without a casualty and is in peak form for the grudge battle.

Manager Hilbert J. (Kelly) Weller has had his hapless charges out this week but has found little improvement in their fielding ability. Master of the sob story technique, Weller has been going to town the last few days. He gives every assurance, however, that the Powers will come out on top.

Ervin Dagan is scheduled to do the hurling for the Power team and he has built up quite a reputation with the city officials, who, incidentally, have been knocked off quite regularly. Manager Sternard has pitchers galore and will keep his starting choice under his hat until the game time. Among the hurlers are Royall LaRoe, Vernon Fuerst, Rudy King, Les Hartzel, Orville Ness, Les Bisek and Irv Krueger. Catching duties will fall to Don Christiansen, Glenn Arthur, Dick Wenzlaff, Howard Rehfeldt or Lloyd Deras. There are about three men available for each infield and outfield position.

Major John Goodland, Jr., and Chief of Police George T. Prim will do the umpiring. There will be plenty of police on hand to quell likely disturbances. The contest is continuation of a feud begun this winter when the Post-Crescent humbled the Powers in several bowling matches.

A band will be on hand to enliven proceedings and a large crowd is expected.

Truckers Crush Chairs in Exhibition Battle, 12 to 7

BY JIM BOHR

CLINTONVILLE—With a barrage of 18 hits, the Clintonville Truckers whittled the Sheboygan Chairs down to their size last night in an exhibition game played at the Truckers field, 12 to 7. Every member on the Clintonville nine got at least one hit. Sheboygan started out with Bob Nelesen on the mound. Larry Roek took his turn on the slab in the seventh and then "Big Buck" Kraus who started the game at third base. The Truckers, winners of the first half bunting in the Northern State league, used Wallie Raasch. Raasch took things easy and ran into difficulty only once or twice but kept bearing down all the way. Raasch lost ten pounds pitching and towards the end of the contest had a hard time holding his pants around his waist.

The Chairs drew blood in the first stanza when Ray Quasius got as far as second on an error by Ankerson. Ray Quasius, the next batter, grounded out advancing Quasius to third where he scored on a double by Buck Kraus. Kraus stole third while Manager Joe Hauser went down swinging but not before he had created quite an uproar with his remarks to the umpire. Johnny Posewitz singled scoring Kraus.

The Truckers came back in the second inning with one run after two men had been retired. Gene Volkman singled, went to second on a single by Al Ankerson, and scored on a single by Rolie Kersten. Sheboygan increased its lead in the fourth with Norris opening with a single. John Switt advanced to third and then on a wild pitch by Kersten, third baseman, Switt scored.

Clintonville took the lead away from the Chairs in the fourth. Volkman started with a single, Al Ankerson was hit by a pitched ball, and Kersten sacrificed both men to second and third, respectively. Wallie Raasch really helped out matters when he bounced on a double left field fence for a double scoring both Volkman and Ankerson. Ray Trimble hit a screaming triple into the right field corner scoring Raasch. In attempting to stretch his hit into a home run, Trimble was called out at home plate.

However, the Chairs were not to be outdone and they tied the score up at 4-4 in the fifth inning. Hauser was safe on a fielder's choice which nabbed Kraus at second. Hauser went to second on a high bouncing ball hit by Posewitz to short. Sid Felts, who turned in a whale of a game at the shortstop position, leaped in the air to get it and got Posewitz at first. Switt drove in Hauser with a single. Larry Casper, Trucker left fielder, put the game partly in the bag in the fifth when, on the first ball pitched, he patted it over the right field fence. Casper played several games with the Chairs last year and at the present time is employed in Sheboygan. Sid Felts, not to be outdone, doubled, and went to third on a hit by Ankerson. Ankerson went to second on the throw in and then on a wild pitch by the Chair catcher trying to catch Ankerson off second. Felts scored. However, Ankerson was caught hands down off second with the old hidden ball trick.

Chairs Change Hurlers

The Truckers added two more in the seventh when Sheboygan changed pitchers after one run was scored on a double by Casper and scored on a double by Casper and scored to third on an error by the Chair third baseman, Kraus. He scored on an error on the catcher. Joe Hauser opened up the eighth inning for the Chairs with a double and Posewitz brought him home with a homer over the right field wall.

Also in the eighth inning the Truckers came through with a mighty blast which scored four runs. Rolie Kersten, the first batter, tripled and scored on a fly ball to left field. Ty Steff also tripled and came home when Ray Trimble doubled. Leo Fox, the lawyer from Chilton who has been performing for the Truckers, brought in the "Tricks" last markers with a long home run over the right field fence.

Sheboygan threatened in the ninth inning but the attempt was futile as the rally was stopped short after one run scored. Wallner, a pinch hitter for Roek, doubled and Pete Norris, who pinch hit for Quasius, flied out to Fox in right field. Dave Quasius singled scoring Wallner for the Chairs seventh and last run of the game.

Conn and Bettina, Two Tough Boys, Tangle Tonight

Former Favored Because Of Recent Wins Over Apostoli, Krieger

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Conn of Pittsburgh and Melio Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., two tough youngsters who fully expect to be in the middle of the heavyweight situation a year from now, clash in a 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden tonight for this country's 175-pound title.

Bettina already has been recognized as light heavyweight champion by the New York state athletic commission, and the winner of tonight's tussle will get an official nod from the National Boxing association, making it unanimous.

Conn, reigning favorite of New York fans since his left hook blasted out two victories over Fred Apostoli and another over Solly Krieger, has been made a firm choice in the betting, with Bettina's admirers receiving 3 to 1 for their money.

Bettina is the boy whose manager, Jimmy Grippio, dabbles with what he calls post-hypnosis. For some time now he has been putting Melio to sleep at regular intervals while he drums strength, courage and hell-fire into his battered ears. Grippio says this will suddenly take effect at about 8 p. m. (C. S. T.) tonight, and that Conn will think he's been struck by a hurricane.

Conn says it's a lot of hokey, to quote him in one of his milder moments. He told Bettina, personally, the other day, he would hypnotize him to where he wouldn't forget it tonight—with a left hook.

Promoter Mike Jacobs has admitted in an unguarded moment he expects to make more out of Conn in the long run than any of the current "contenders" for Joe Louis' heavyweight title. He is figuring, of course, that Conn, who only recently turned 20, will continue to grow and become a full-fledged heavyweight by next summer.

Bettina has similar ideas. Like Conn, he realizes there is little of either profit or fame in the light heavy division, and after tonight's scrap he intends to go after the big boys almost exclusively.

Youngsters Paired For Golf Championship

Chicago (AP)—Sixteen year old Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D., and Mary Wilder, freckled youngster from Glenwood, Ill., paired up today for a final 18 hole trek over Exnor's links to determine the 1939 women's western junior golf champion.

Miss Tainter, conqueror of medalist Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill., brushed aside Ruth More of Evanston, Ill., 4 and 3 in one semifinal yesterday. In the other, Miss Wilder defeated Mary Jane Garm of East Chicago, Ind., 3 and 2. Miss Cline, relegated to the consolation flight after her first round setback, opposed Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Iowa, in the finals of that division today.

Kissinger Funeral Services at Waupaca

Waupaca—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kissinger returned from a western trip Wednesday noon after receiving word in Glendale, Ore., Saturday that Mr. Kissinger's father, W. P. Kissinger, had died unexpectedly Friday afternoon. Receiving a letter upon arriving in Glendale informing them of the father's illness, they went to the home of a cousin, Miss Estelle Koehler, formerly of Waupaca, and there they learned from a telegram of the death. The home trip was begun Saturday, covering distances of 700 miles a day.

The funeral services for Mr. Kissinger were conducted at 1:30 Thursday afternoon from the home where a brief service was read, and at 2 o'clock from the Immanuel Lutheran church by the Rev. F. A. Reier. Burial will be in Lakeside cemetery.

Health Centers Are Scheduled

Planned Throughout County to Correct Defects During Vacations

Waupaca—Through the co-operation of groups in Waupaca county interested in the promotion of health among children, it has been made possible to conduct child health centers periodically, according to Miss Estelle Jung, Waupaca county nurse. She states that there will be an opportunity for every child who is about to enter one of the county's schools for the first time this fall, to be examined at one of these health centers early enough to allow ample time for the correction of any defects which may need attention before the opening of school. Conferences have been scheduled throughout the county.

Dr. Mary Allen of the state bureau of maternal and child health will examine children from infancy up to school age. Registrations at these centers begin at 8:30 in the morning and will be taken through to 11:30 and again from 1 o'clock to 3:30 in the afternoon. Expectant mothers may also present themselves for consultation.

The county nurse has asked that no child who coughs or has other symptoms which might be a forerunner of a communicable disease, be brought to the health centers.

The schedule follows:
July 20, Clintonville, sponsored by the Senior Women's club.
July 21, Waupaca, sponsored by the Monday Night club.
July 27, Weyauwega, sponsored by the Kensington club.
July 28, Marion, sponsored by the Women's club.

Early in August there will be at least two additional centers for children not reached in the above mentioned districts. These latter will cover the northwestern section of the county.

In studying reports on school inspections over a period of two years Miss Jung found that an alarmingly large number of children have teeth which are almost beyond repair. She said that in many instances, with very little additional effort on the part of parents, these teeth might have been saved. She added that many children are being raised on farms where there is plenty of milk, and that they do not drink it because they have not been taught the value of this food in connection with bone and tooth material.

License Question Up Before Council

Waupaca—The city council again will consider the report of the special license committee when it meets Tuesday evening. At the last session of the city fathers the special license committee recommended that liquor licenses be not extended to allow selling by bottle or broken package and Attorney Kyle Anderson acting for eight tavernkeepers, presented an appeal. Since tavernkeepers just outside the city limits are permitted to make such sales and since the city license fee is extremely high ($350), they argued that, although similar petitions have been denied for three years, it was fair to allow them the same privilege.

Waupaca Commerce Association Meets At Camp Cleghorn

Waupaca—Thirty members of the association of commerce held their July meeting at Camp Cleghorn Wednesday evening, a dinner being served the group at 6:30 in the Camp dining room.

Prof. H. A. Hyer, a former president of the state teachers' college at Stevens Point, was the guest speaker and told the group much of the past as well as the future development of the chain o' lakes area. Prof. Hyer deplored the fact that the lakes are not patrolled, believing the speed boats to be of real danger to persons on the lake unless properly supervised and controlled.

Prof. Hyer, who spends his summers on Rainbow lake, is president of the Chain o' Lakes Protective association.

Dr. Enoch Perry, Milwaukee, who has been coming to the lakes for nearly fifty years, also was on the program, as was L. H. Christensen, secretary of the Camp Cleghorn Assembly.

Carl Waller Rites to Be Conducted Friday

Waupaca—Funeral services for Carl Waller, who died Tuesday morning shortly after his car collided with a truck while enroute to Amherst, will be conducted at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from the Norwegian Lutheran church at Amherst. Burial will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

Mr. Waller was the son of Nels and Helene Waller of the town of Amherst in Portage county. He was born July 14, 1873, and will be buried on his sixty-sixth birthday. His entire life had been spent on the homestead where he lived with his brother Olaf. Other survivors are a brother Lloyd, Waupaca; Bernard, Nelsonville, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Lutz and Mrs. Otto Otterside of Wisconsin Rapids.

Rotary Officers Are Installed At Clintonville

D. J. Rohrer Assumes Duties at President of Organization

Clintonville—Officers for the ensuing year were installed at a meeting of the Rotary club Tuesday evening at Hotel Marson, with past president Max Stieg as the installing officer. The ceremonies were preceded by a 6:30 dinner, at which 81 guests were present which included Rotary Annas.

The guest speaker for the occasion was the Rev. Basil Reuss, instructor in history and economics at St. Norbert's college, West DePere, whose subject was "Americanism." Prior to entering the priesthood, Father Reuss was graduated from a law school in the east and practiced his profession for five years. With the priesthood as his goal, the young lawyer entered St. Norbert's college where he affiliated with the Norbertine Order.

Mrs. C. A. Keyes of Green Bay, a former resident of Clintonville, is a guest this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gause. It was her father, Fred Ward, who built the Ward hotel here many years ago. The name of the establishment was recently changed to the Parkview hotel.

The Clintonville Chapter of War Mothers held their July meeting Tuesday at the Parkview hotel. The organization went on record as being opposed to the United States entry into war and the secretary was instructed to write letters to Congressmen to that effect. Lunch was served at the close of the afternoon by Mrs. John Needham, Mrs. Ida Meggers and Mrs. William Laahs.

Max Stieg went to Detroit, Mich., Wednesday, where he will attend a three-day conference of bankers from 15 central states. Mr. Stieg, recently elected vice president of the Wisconsin State Bankers' associ-

Strikers in Pontiac Can't Point the Finger at Hague

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—An incident in the C.I.O. strike at the Fisher Body plant in Pontiac, Mich., seems to violate the pet contention of that organization in the long and recently victorious struggle with Frank Hague of Jersey City.

In Pontiac 400 workers in certain departments struck and 1,100 in other departments did not, but the strikers placed a picket line before the gates and turned aside non-strikers who wanted to go to their jobs. After a conference Mr. Roy Reuther, the international representative of the union, graciously agreed to open the line wide enough to admit the workers one at a time, but when one man tried to go through the pickets closed up and he was driven off.

In Jersey City, it will be recalled, Mr. Hague prevented representatives of the C.I.O. from assembling, distributing pamphlets and making public speeches. He invoked local ordinances to justify this conduct, but they were illegal ordinances, and at the insistence of the C.I.O. and the Civil Liberties union he was rebuked and compelled to respect the rights of the C.I.O. and others.

Now it is the fashion for unionists and New Deal extremists to argue that the right to work is not subversive when they are advocating larger appropriations for relief projects and to insist that a man has a property right in his job when they are demanding protection against layoffs and discharges in private industry but the right to work becomes a subject for sneers and is worse than subversive when it is asserted on behalf of the non-striker in a plant which has been struck or partly struck and the non-striker's property right in his job somehow is deemed to be revocable at the pleasure of a union or the political leader of the union.

Reuther Has No Right To Bar Men from Jobs
Hague used force to compel obedience to orders which had at least, in a phrase of President Roosevelt, the color of legality. He was technically a responsible public official, having received at the polls something which the New Deal calls, in its own case, an overwhelming mandate from the people.

Reuther is not a public official. He is an executive of a private organization which has no more right to bar men from their jobs than it has to bar them from their homes or public meetings or from their chosen places of worship. His organization has no more right than the Elks, the American Legion or the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise to nullify the liberties of non-members either by intimidation through the threat of force or by actual resort to force.

In principle, when his picket line closed up and made it impossible or unsafe for men to enjoy the property right which has so often been asserted by the C.I.O.'s most passionate partisans, he was guilty of the very conduct which the C.I.O. protested all the way to the supreme court in the case of Frank Hague. The case would have been the same, in reverse, if some body of vigilantes in Pontiac had formed a living wall around the headquarters of the union and prevented the members from attending a meeting. In that event the C.I.O. and the Civil Liberties union would have been hollering for indictments and the impeachment of the civil authorities within an hour of the outrage.

Should Be Compelled To Respect Men's Rights
The fact that Mr. Reuther violated an agreement which is less important than the fact that no man should have to obtain his permission or special indulgence to exercise his lawful right as a citizen. Neither Mr. Reuther nor the organization which he represents has any legal right to bar men from their place of employment. He shouldn't be requested to refrain from interference; he should be ordered and, if necessary, compelled, as Hague was, to respect the rights for which the C.I.O. fought so bitterly in Jersey City.

In a recent exchange of words with a New England woman who advocates legislation to bar married women from public jobs Mrs. Roosevelt asked, "Do you want us to become a fascist nation which tells one when to work and how?"

If that be fascism—and I believe it is—the C.I.O. has been owing the country an answer since long before the New England proposition was thought of.

National Labor Board Revises Its Rules

Washington — (P) — Announcing that it sought "a more effective administration" of the Wagner act, the national labor board has revised some of its rules of procedure.

Chief interest of both employer and labor groups in the changes put into effect yesterday centered on a regulation permitting employees to petition for Wagner act elections where two or more unions claim the exclusive right to speak for the workers but have not asked the board to intervene.

Some employers complained at congressional hearings that they were caught frequently in the middle of union representation disputes.

The other changes in the rules affected procedure and incorporated into specific regulations many of the practices developed by the board since the rules were first adopted in 1936.

Tax Payments are Above Estimates

Waupaca County in Position to Meet Outstanding Obligations

Waupaca — County Treasurer L. J. Stadler stated Wednesday that delinquent tax payments due on or before July 1, had exceeded all expectations, $83,166.14 having been paid to date. Of the $198,807.36 due there now remains $115,641.22 to be paid.

"The county has enough to pay all outstanding obligations to date," he stated. "From now on the money will have to roll in to pay the expenses that are coming due."

The treasury will show a large balance within another week or so when the state aid will be received.

St. Agnes Guild Has Meeting at Waupaca

Waupaca — St. Agnes Guild was entertained at the home of Mrs. Viola Czeskleba Tuesday afternoon at a dessert luncheon. Mrs. Czeskleba was assisted by Mrs. Ralph Hoffman. Bridge followed the regular business session.

To the Lady in The Grey Ford Who Said, "I DON'T KNOW HOW THEY DO IT"

When you walked out of our Super Market we heard you say, "I don't know how they do it." No doubt you referred to our low prices — Did you see any fancy fixtures in our Super Market? No! Did you see any evidence of phone or delivery service? No! And had you inquired, we would have told you that charge accounts are taken, too. These things raise the prices of the foods you buy . . . And that is why we ban them! But that is only half the story of "how we do it". A&P buys many fine foods direct from producers . . . thus unnecessary in-between profits and handling charges are eliminated from the cost. Savings made in this way, added to the economies effected in operating our markets, enable A&P Super to sell fine foods for less! Your savings probably paid for many a gallon of gas!

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

You can learn to swim at home if you practice this exercise

Personally, I think the best way to be taught to swim is to be thrown into water at an early age and told to sink or swim! Of course, you must be of tender years when danger is just a lark, for the older you grow the greater your fear of the water, if you never have learned how to keep on its surface!

But if you are truly interested in wanting to learn to swim there is a certain exercise you can practice at home, balanced on a stool or over a chair. This is presented through the courtesy of Victor Lawson, former English long-distance swimming champion. He has taught many a lady the various strokes and crawls, with no more water near her than a bowl of oil under her nose!

1—Balance yourself across a stool which is as high as the ordinary chair. Lie face down and support yourself with your hands in any manner you wish, but keep your legs and feet free of the floor as high as the supported part of your body.

2—Stretched out in this position pretend to walk on air, taking short mincing steps, the toes turned slightly inward, with your feet a few inches apart. Move your feet up and down in rhythm, first one then the other. This is used in the Olympic crawl.

3—Continue this movement until you can get more action in your leg work, pretending you are trying to shake your feet off from the ankles as you kick. The kick up and down should not be more than ten inches.

Keep your legs relaxed, not tense, with scarcely any action in the knees. The power in the kick comes from back and stomach muscles, not from the hips and knees. (As the knees pass each other during the kicking, they should barely brush.)

If you are kicking correctly, the up-beat is felt in the stomach muscles, the down-beat is felt in the back muscles.

Practice this for about two minutes, rest and repeat. Do it every single day until it becomes a rhythmic habit.

Learn to Breathe

One of the easiest ways to convince yourself that you will not drown if you gulp a mouthful of water as you swim, is to duck your face into a bowl of good drinking water. Breathe in the water, do not swallow it, breathe it out again. You may keep your eyes open all of the time as the water will not harm them. As you swim water may rush in and out of your mouth without you swallowing a bit of it. Through forceful breathing you push it out, much as a porpoise does.

The secret of good swimming technique is rhythmic breathing and kicking which permits coordination of your body muscles. It is best to learn in shallow water so the fear of drowning will be dispelled. It is a good idea to hold your nose and squat under the water and come up again just so you will feel the force of the water pushing your body to the surface. In this way you will lose your fear.

Swimming, particularly the good old-fashioned breast stroke, is excellent for your beauty. The breast stroke is one of the finest chest-developing exercises there is. If done correctly it also distributes pounds of flesh to where they belong!

In my "Fashionable Bust Contour" leaflet there are several excellent breathing exercises which will aid your swimming. Write me in care of the Post-Crescent and I will send you a self-addressed envelope bearing a three-cent stamp if you request it.

Opponent Not Justified in His Criticism

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: My bidding in the following hand was called 'dishonest' by the opponents. I was South. The final contract, which was made by a little ruse, was undoubtedly unsound, but I would appreciate your comment on the bid which West, an opponent, called dishonest. Also, I should like to know whether any of the ethics at the bridge table call for 'dishonest bidding'."

"North, dealer."

"East-West vulnerable."

"The bidding:

North East South West
1 club 1 spade 2 hearts 3 diam.
3 hearts 4 diam. 4 hearts 4 spades
5 hearts Double Pass

"It was my four heart bid that West called dishonest, his reason being that I failed to double four diamonds. I did not double because I felt that for one thing, four diamonds might be made, and for another, that there would be a good chance for game in hearts. Need I say, my partner's five heart bid made me mean, since I had hoped to double four spades."

"West opened the queen of partner's bid spade suit. Dummy's ace won and I paused to count my losers. At a glance one spade, one heart, one diamond and one club seemed inevitable. Then I got a bright idea that might work, and proceeded to act on it. I led the diamond seven to my ace and returned the diamond jack, holding my breath while West decided whether or not to cover. Finally he played low (probably expecting his partner to have the diamond queen for his raise) and, of course, I discarded the spade from dummy. Things looked brighter now. I led a low heart from dummy. East ducked and my king held. Another heart led went to East's ace and the club queen was returned. East probably hoping his partner had A-J-x. But obviously, it was all over now. West could take only the ace and I could claim the balance."

"Of all the questionable bids that were made on this hand, my failure to double four diamonds was the only one that caused fireworks."

This is an extraordinary situation. It is fantastic enough to be upbraided by an opponent for one's choice of bids. When said opponent's criticism is wrong, and when he adds the stigma of "dishonest" to his remarks, the thing passes understanding.

Leaving aside the academic correctness or incorrectness of all the reported bids, and is completely ethical, in making any bid that pops into his head, always provided, of course, that there has been no prior secret understanding with partner. Presumably, a bad bid will carry its own punishment, hence if a player wants to get fancy it is strictly his own affair. Now as to the actual merits of West's criticism, South was perfectly correct to bid four hearts instead of doubling four diamonds. How was South to know that his partner, North, had made two bids which were outrageously stretched? If West felt he must criticize somebody, he should have asked North whether he got the nerve to open the bidding and later to raise the hearts—which, in itself, would be a nerve thing to ask, but, at least, according to usual bridge table procedure.

West might also try to justify his failure to cover the diamond jack. This frightful lapse was what led the contract to be fulfilled. Also, East's lead of the club queen, after winning with the heart ace, did not make declarer's problem any harder.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

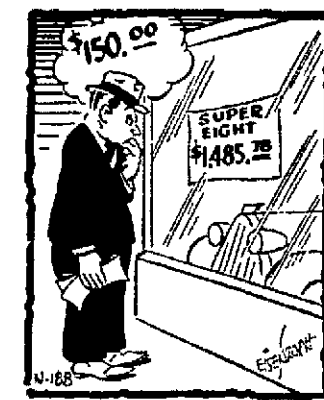

Psychologist, Northwestern University

The government has unjustly criticized installment buying, for this method of financing purchases is blameless. The real criticism should be leveled at the childish adults who permit capriciousness to replace financial logic. A tangible object usually overpowers an intangible process such as a deferred payment plan.

CASE N-188: Queen, aged 6, is the Shetland pony mentioned yesterday.

In order to encourage our older sons to pay their half of the purchase price, I decided to draw an outline picture of a pony. Mrs. Crane then made a second copy, and crosshatched each pony so that it was composed of big and little squares.

Then she labled some squares with 1c, others with 5c and the rest with 10c pieces. Whenever the boys paid us something toward the $22.50 which was their quota, they were permitted to use their crayons and color as many sections of the pony as they had bought.

Thus, if they worked until they had 25 cents, they could fill in two of the 10c squares and a 5c square. This graphic or visual method of recording their installments was very appealing. Philip quickly filled in the 1c squares, however, in order to make it look as if his pony was more nearly paid for. Both boys took a new interest in earning money and paying their debt.

Visualize Your Services
The most successful dentists and physicians are often those who likewise visualize their services. We adults crave concrete examples in preference to generality.

We repose more faith in color-er medicines and phish pills than in an hour's constructive lecture by our doctor. Even in regard to religion, we aren't much different from the Israelites who stampeded Aaron into moulding a golden calf for them to worship.

An intangible object is more difficult to imagine than is a concrete item. Automobiles and radios, therefore, are much easier to sell than are life insurance policies.

Churches with ritual and crucifixes, beads and statuary, can influence men and women more effectively than those using only words and intangible concepts.

Don't Criticize Doubting Thomas
Doubting Thomas epitomizes mankind's craving for tangibles in contrast to spiritual concepts. The Indians sold out the future inheritance of their posterity for a few glittering beads and some fire water.

Thousands of Chicago voters in every election sell out for a stein of beer. Relief checks will buy more votes than impassioned oratory about spiritual idealism and the lofty principles of those who founded our republic.

Bribery subverts even intelligent men, because cold cash means automobiles, rich foods, movies and theater dates, travel, etc. Prohibition has a difficult fight because it doesn't offer revenue to newspapers in the form of advertising, as does the opposition.

No does it produce dividends on millions invested in brewing machinery. The prohibitionists don't get their palms covered with 30 pieces of silver, if they win. They unselfishly fight the cause of idealism and the welfare of mankind.

Adults Are Overgrown Children
The abuse of installment buying was due to childish cupidty of the adults who signed up for more merchandise than their income warranted. They "wanted" a car as my boys wanted a pony.

Without our parental prodding, their progress in buying their ponies, complete their payments.

Last year an executive of a Chicago finance company handling deferred payments on automobile purchases told me that his company was stuck with 2,700 autos per month instead of the 900 average number of defaulted contracts. Why? Childish adults untutored in horse sense, which sanctions paying the piper for your dance.

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write to care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover printing and typing costs. Letters and reader's names are never published.

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

Sun roses are always a pleasant adventure to a gardener. While they are by no means common, they do not rank classification among the rarities. Resembling miniature shrubs, they grow in flat creeping masses, topped with the gayest colors, which include creams, yellows, oranges and blending into almost perfect copers, with white as an added attraction. Both single and double flowering forms are available. At this season they are sold as potted plants which can be set out in almost any sunny spot.

Propagation of sun roses will give the gardener an opportunity to use the sand he may have collected on a trip. Sun roses are easily propagated from cuttings inserted at this time in sand beds or, in the case of the gardener not equipped with a cutting bed, in a cutting pot.

This simplest arrangement for starting cuttings consists of two flower pots, preferably a three-inch pot and a six-inch pot. The hole in the three-inch pot is plugged to prevent the hurried escape of water. An inch of roughage is placed in the bottom of the six-inch pot and then an inch of ash on top of that. The three-inch pot is then placed inside the six-inch pot and the space between the two walls filled with sharp, washed sand into which the cuttings are inserted for rooting.

At the start the sand is watered heavily after which all watering is done by keeping the three-inch pot filled with water. Water seeping from the walls of this inner pot keeps the sand in the larger pot constantly moist. Cuttings inserted in the sand root in several weeks when this arrangement is stood in a shaded spot.

not extremely formal dresses, do they have to wear gloves?

Answer: Yes -- whether dresses are long or short.

5. When are the minister and the organist paid for their services?

Answer: You pay the organist afterwards. The best man fees the clergyman immediately after the service. The best man goes back into the vestry with the clergyman and gives him the envelope containing the fee, which the bridegroom has previously given him. Meanwhile the others are walking out of the church.

6. Is it necessary for the bride and groom to exchange gifts?

Answer: It is expected that the bridegroom give the bride the loveliest present he can possibly afford. But if he can't afford it, it is not a necessity. It is never necessary that she give him one, but she may of course, if she can, and wants to.

7. Is it necessary to write thank-you notes to members of our family for wedding gifts, or is just thinking them personally sufficient?

Answer: It is not necessary to write notes to those who have seen alone and have thanked at length. But to say thank you hurriedly first to one and then to another in a general group is not sufficient. To these last you should write notes, too, and also to those to whom you have said thank you at the reception.

(Note: This Questionnaire will be concluded in tomorrow's column.)

After maiden hair fern has grown all during the year it begins to turn brown. This is a sign it needs rest and ferns, like all other plants, want and take their season for rest. ## Spankings Worth Trying Before Seeing Attorney

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—I read with great interest the letter in your column from the woman who wanted to know if she should consider marrying a man who frankly told her he would spank his wife should she become in need of such stern treatment. I wish I could tell this girl of my experience and my thankfulness that my husband had the courage to act when he realized he had a spoiled child on his hands instead of a wife.

DOROTHY DIX

He treated me as a parent should an unruly child. He gave me a good spanking. It wasn't a hard spanking, but it hurt my feelings and wounded my pride. The next day I went home to Mother and when I arrived I found she was away. I poured out my troubles to Father and told him I was home for good. He said nothing, but went in and called up my husband. I was furious, but that got me nothing. My husband arrived and he and Father went into a conference. I, in the meantime, going into the bedroom and bursting into floods of tears.

Soon the door opened and there was my husband, hairbrush in hand. From then on for many minutes I could do nothing but cry and plead. Then the door opened and in walked Mother. She stopped suddenly, saw what was going on and silently turned around and left the room.

A few minutes later we four sat and talked about what had transpired and I learned that my husband had told both Mother and Father what he had intended to do to me provided I continued my rude ways as his wife. It was either divorce or punishment he had told my parents. They agreed that they had been at fault and accepted by husband's decision. At last they realized and admitted their shortcomings and believed spankings, coming twenty years late, are worth trying before consulting an attorney. Wife-spankers are not wife-beaters, they are wife savers many times.

Answer:
No one can doubt that the main reason for the enormous increase in divorce is due to the fact that so many parents have quit disciplining their children, or teaching them any self-control or regard for the rights of others.

I think that the most idiotic, as well as the most mischievous, story that has ever been advanced is that you must never say "don't" to a child, and that you must never correct one or make it behave for fear of breaking its proud spirit.

Naturally this idea has been enthusiastically accepted by lazy mothers who don't want to wrestle with a strong-willed youngster, but all human experience contradicts it at every turn. For life is one continual "don't" to all of us. And we all find that if our mothers have not disciplined us in our childhood, the world does it with a hard hand later on.

It is the spoiled children, male and female, the mothers' darlings, who fill the world with broken homes and half-orphaned children. There is no doubt that many a one of these tragedies could be saved if the husband or wife who is acting like a brat could be punished like a child. And after all, the hurt from a hairbrush doesn't last for a lifetime as a divorce does.

But what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. And if the spanking method is to be tried as a cure for divorce, let it be extended to the rotten child husbands as well as to the rotten child wives. Plenty of selfish, egotistic, nagging husbands who are ruining the lives of good wives need it as well as spiteful wives. And, oh, how many of us would like to see the grouches get what is coming to them!

Dear Miss Dix—I am a woman of middle age and now find myself no longer in love with my husband, but in love with one of our friends. He is also married, but only his wife to give up, while I have two sons who are about grown. My husband and I have talked this over and have decided—

And don't forget that there is one person in the world you can never run away from, no matter how you get that is YOU—YOURSELF. And if you're filled with bitter regrets for a folly you have committed, you will have very bad company.

FOUR BLIND DATES

By Edwin Rutt

YESTERDAY: News is received at the Penguin Club that Bill needs bailing out of jail for socking a guy named Dufferender on the jaw. Meanwhile, Miss Dorothy South is discussing the financial status of one Van Rypper Harkness, with her pal, Ape Coletti.

Chapter Seven
THE UNHOLY THREE

At the mention of lucie an almost intelligent expression appeared on the Ape's face.

"Oh, yeah?" he said.

"There's no doubt in my mind," continued Miss South, "that the early Van Ryppers were probably some of the boys who kipped the Indians out of Manhattan Island for twenty-four bucks and a handful of collar buttons. That wouldn't mean a thing to a gorilla like you, of course. But to a smart guy it says jack, dough, mazzuma, tin greenbacks, spondulix, cash and what do you use for money just off Division Street?"

The Ape was interested, but still unconvinced. He strove to bring the conversation back to its original premise.

"Okay," he said, "Mebbe it does. But wot's dat got to do wid you double-crossin'..."

"Oh, shut up," interrupted Miss South, exasperated. "Nobody's double-crossing you, you poor sap. And, by the way, where do you get the idea that I'm a sofie about you, I

Are you the "late-to-get-up-in-the-morning" type? You'll view the dawn with new eyes in this fresh little cotton frock, Anne Adams' Pattern 4137. The frock buttons makes it a quick in and out, and lets you spread it flat for speedy-ironing. And see those grand side panels—they'll slim your hips and widen your skirts to a youthful flare. There's a generous panel in the back skirt too. Don't you love the way the collar scallops its way all around, ending short or extending into curved revers? It would be most effective in contrasting fabric, with cuffs to match. Ricrac or ruffles add a gay touch, and a pocket gives extra chic.

Pattern 4137 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 41 yards 35 inch fabric and 1 yard contrast.

rarely waited to be disillusioned. He was suspicious first and believing afterwards. It often seemed to him that his whole life had been spent in protecting himself against such adverse catastrophes as the run-around, being two-timed and double-crossed. The run-around of his life, to date, had been to make him wary. It had also fashioned him into no mean double-crosser in his own right.

"Hey, kid!" he said suddenly. "Ain't we the mugs? Why we gotta cut de Chiseler in on dis? Wot's wrong wid us knockin' off dis Harkness lug an' divvin' de swag?"

Miss South regarded him pityingly. "You would come through with one like that," she said. "It crosses your mind that it would be a good idea to lure Mr. Harkness to a vacation lot and tap him with a black-jack. You think, I suppose, that he carries his fortune in his sock? Listen Ape, you're one swell fellow in a street brawl, but when it comes to foresight you string along comes the laughing hyenas. No, we need the Chiseler. He's got more brains in his little finger than you have in your whole family."

"In Amongst I!"
The doorknob rang. Miss South opened the door with her own lily-white hand.

"Hello, honey," she said. "Welcome to our city."

Chiseler Jennings was a tall, spare individual with pale, bulging eyes and a magnificent pair of ears was a man of some education who, in his youth had been taught to eschew murdering the King's English. He was simply, as Marlowe puts it, a branch that might have grown full straight.

"Hardly a problem, Chiseler," said Dorothy. "As far as I can see, it's merely a matter that we ought to look into, that's all."

The Chiseler clasped his hands

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER GRASS HOUSES

Seventy years ago, people heard a great deal about "the wild Indians of the western plains." This is the main reason why a certain legend grew up, a legend which said the teepee, or animal-skin tent, was the common dwelling of North American Indians. Teepees were the usual homes of Indians of the plains, but were not used in most sections.

Outside and inside views of a Wichita Indian grass house. (After H. L. Madison.)

Tribes which had teepees lived chiefly between the Rocky mountains on the west and Hudson bay and the Mississippi river on the east.

Nearly all the Indians elsewhere on our continent built homes of other kinds. Most of them lived and died without ever seeing a teepee.

Bark wigwams were the common homes from Nova Scotia to Virginia, and westward through the Great Lakes region.

The wigwams of the Iroquois were larger than those of most tribes. Sometimes they were 18 to 20 feet wide, and from 75 to 100 feet long. Bark was cut from trees to fasten over a wooden framework.

Another kind of Indian home was the grass house. It was used by the Wichita Indians, and by tribes related to the Wichita.

The city of Wichita was named after these Indians, and some of them once lived in a section of Kansas. Most of the grass houses, however, were built in Oklahoma, Arkansas and parts of Louisiana and Texas.

If you could go back and watch a Wichita home being built, this is about what you would see.

The house-building Indians would mark out a circle roughly 30 feet wide. Then they would put eight posts in the ground, in the line of the circle, with equal spaces between them. The posts would rise about 14 feet from the ground.

The next step was to place log beams on the tops of the posts. Then the "ribs" were added. There were about 60 ribs, each one a long sapling. The saplings were set in the ground at points about four feet outside the circle. They were bent over toward the center, where their tops were tied together. They also were fastened with willow cords to the beams between the posts.

On this framework, the Wichita Indians fastened bundles of grass until they covered it. Thus they finished their "grass house."

Inside a grass house, at the center of the floor, was the place of the bonfire. Above it was a hole in the roof which served as a chimney. There were beds or "bunks" in the house, sometimes one above another.

Town of Brillion to Raise $800, Voters Decide at Meeting

Forest Junction — Attended by 45 electors, the annual school meeting in the village Monday evening for School District No. 7 in the town of Brillion voted $800 as the district tax levy for the ensuing year, fixed Sept. 5 as the date for the opening of the school.

ing of the nine-month term, decided continuation of the free textbook system, referred minor matters of upkeep to the school board and elected Edward Freitag, former district clerk, to succeed Arthur

Schnell in the same position. Schnell was ineligible for reelection because of his recent election to the Brillion town board of supervisors. Voters, who had endorsed building of a new schoolhouse at the annual meeting in 1937 and had sub-insulated roof and woodshed improvements in 1938, were still undecided as to a proper course of procedure in the matter in the face of pending possibilities of consolidation of districts. Last year's action in raising $300 for a new roof and woodshed, which, however had not yet been expended, was modified so as to authorize the board to use the amount in such improvements on the present building as they deem advisable.

In District 4, town of Brillion, only eight voters attended the annual meeting on Monday evening. A district tax levy of $500 was voted.

a reduction of $100 from last year's figure, and reelected Edwin Seybold as district clerk for a three-year term. School in this district will also open on Sept. 5.

Butter Reserves

Set New Record

Warehouse Stocks of American Cheese
Also Show Increase

Chicago —(P)—Reserves of creamery butter in the nation's cold storage warehouses rose 47,403,000 pounds last month to establish a new July 1 record of 132,370,000 pounds, the monthly report of the bureau of agricultural economics disclosed.

The July 1 holdings compared with 121,467,000 pounds a year ago, included in the record total were, 17,867,000 pounds held by the Dairy Products Marketing association for resale or relief purposes and 20,634,000 pounds held by the federal surplus commodities corporation, and various state relief agencies.

behind his back and bowed his head.

"State the proposition," he said with dignity.

"Very well," Miss South said, setting herself in a chair and lighting a cigarette. "When you decided that it would be a good idea to set me up in this gilded cage, my job was to try and get in amongst the rich and lofty, wasn't it? I mean, so that you and Angel-Face here—she indicated Coletti—could strut your stuff better."

"Quite so," assented the Chiseler.

Miss South made a fan of her crimson-tipped fingers. "Okay, I'm in amongst it."

"Splendid," said the Chiseler approvingly. "What's the story?"

"The story," Miss South continued, "is roughly this: A few days ago just as I was leaving this apartment house, a young gent drives up to the curb. And what do you think he drives up in? A very snooty Isotta-Franchini. And you know as well as I do, Chiseler, that young gentlemen who ply up and down the streets of this village in Isotta-Franchinis are not exactly on relief."

This appeared logical to the Chiseler. He nodded. "Proceed."

Miss South laughed. "That's exactly what I did. I proceeded. No sooner had I lapped this baby in this ritzy bus than I proceeded to put my left foot in front of my right foot in such manner that I could not help stumbling over it. I landed on my silken knees right alongside of the Isotta-Franchini. As I did so, I let my handbag fly one way and my gloves another. And did it work? Well, ask me, big boy! The young gentleman was out of the car like a shot and began helping me up! Of course, I put my hand to my forehead and pretended to be hurt."

"An' you wuzn' hoit, huh?" cut in Coletti, in a burst of keen penetration. "Geez, dat's a hot one!"

"Pretty Work."

The Chiseler waved him into silence. "Go on, Dorothy! What happened?"

"Well, he picked me up. And then he wanted to know could he take me anywhere. Of course, I said no right away. . . . I said I was all right except that my knee felt a bit funny. I doubted if I could walk very far on it. So he said 'where was I going and I told him shopping. So he said he'd take me.' 'In de Isotta?' inquired Coletti, just to get things straight.

"No, sweetheart. In the back of his watch. So, Chiseler, after a decent amount of girlish hemming and hawing, I planted these old

Heil Supporters Pessimistic Over Chances for Bills

Leaders Fear Reorganization Measures are Doomed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Pessimism has keynoted the comments of administration leaders on the prospects of the sweeping Heil reorganization program which is pending in the state legislature in the last few days.

One Republican senator in a responsible position of leadership yesterday remarked that "I don't know what's going to happen to his (Heil's) reorganization bills. We simply haven't enough votes in this house to put them over."

Three successive defeats already have met what is regarded as the key piece of the reorganization program, the highway commission reorganization bill. With Senator Mike Mack of Shiocton as chairman the senate highways committee frowned upon it. After much jockeying and delay the senate itself killed it by a vote of 18 to 15.

When the governor's office immediately introduced an identical bill in the lower house, the finance committee after a hearing which produced only one advocate of it reported it back for killing. Yesterday hurried administration floorleaders succeeded in sending it back to the committee once more, in the hope that some of its members may have changed their minds.

Some Republicans feel that the blow to the executive office on the highway commission issue has demoralized administration strength on some of the other bills which have delayed business in the upper house for many weeks.

As yet, however, there is no evidence of relaxation of the governor's demands that he be allowed to appoint subordinate state officers in important state departments. All of the reorganization bills would allow the governor to choose the directors and assistant directors of state departments.

A possible new obstacle to an important reorganization bill appeared this week in the banking commission bill. Some observers believe that the constitutional requirement for a two-thirds vote in the legislature on banking laws will apply to the banking department bill, although its author, Assemblyman Mark Catlin of Appleton, a lawyer, does not. If that requirement is invoked, it is clear that the bill will be defeated, for every roll call shows that Republican leaders have a very scant majority.

Altamont, Kans.—(P)—You can miss church services but get religion anyway in Altamont. The Rev. Hector Green, noting many absentees at Sunday services, has offered to "come and preach" whenever a group of 20 or more gathers on a creek bank for a picnic.

Women Pedestrians Careful, National Safety Council Says

Chicago—(P)—The women walked their way to one of 1938's best traffic safety showings, the National Safety Council disclosed Wednesday.

The council's statistical bureau reported that the percentage of females among the nation's 12,500 pedestrian deaths last year was only 21.9.

Of the 275,000 non-fatal injuries to pedestrians 33 per cent was inflicted upon females.

Seeking to determine why women were less likely to be killed than men, Rufus C. Jasper, traffic engineer and secretary of the council committee on pedestrian control, said he believed women were "more safety conscious."

"For generations," he analyzed it, "women have had the responsibility of caring for children, which has endowed them with a greater awareness of danger. This protective instinct, refined from one age to the next, has, I believe, made them especially cautious when exposed to traffic hazards."

"It is probable too, that fewer women are on the street at night, which is the most hazardous time for walking or driving. In our large

Propose Safety Lane For Check on Autos In Outagamie County

Officers of the Outagamie County Safety council have been asked by the state highway commission to plan a free safety inspection lane for automobiles in or near Appleton the week of July 31 to Aug. 5.

Traffic officers and county automobile dealers would be urged to participate in staging the test lane, under the state proposal. Full information on the staging of such a lane has been sent to the safety council. Entering the lane would be entirely voluntary. Each car would be checked for breaks, lighting equipment, safety accessories and tires.

Similar safety lanes conducted last June in the state brought in several thousand automobiles, and revealed a number of mechanical defects that endangered safety. Each driver was given a card showing results of each test, and was urged to have any defects corrected before driving.
